FOREWORD

The car that stops to help the fair "sheep-in-distress" fix a flat tire will be driven either by a "sheep-in-armor" or a "wolf-on-patrol." It makes a difference.

Everyone the reader meets is either a wolf or a sheep. This book is about wolves - and sheep.

Wolves eat sheep - that's what they do. And sheep try to keep from being eaten. That's what they do.

The Wolf and The Sheep

Sheep

Wolves eat sheep - that's what they do.

Sheep try to keep from being eaten - that's what they do.

That sounds basic, but it's surprising how many people don't know these basic facts.

I've got a computer. On this computer is a program containing an encyclopedia. There's a lot of information in that computer encyclopedia. One can enter the name of a subject, wait a moment, and receive page after page of information.

One subject I entered was "sheep." The information soon appeared on the screen. It was interesting what the encyclopedia had to say about sheep.

The encyclopedia said that sheep need a shepherd and that as a rule they are very obedient to their shepherd. The article went on to say that sheep are lost without a shepherd. At times they can be so stupid that they might stay in the same place, eat up all the grass and starve themselves, while good pastures are close by. It's the shepherd who takes them to the green pastures to feed. The Shepherd looks after his sheep.<sup>1</sup>

Sheep are very productive. They grow wool, produce mutton, give milk, and in general are quiet, productive, accumulative creatures. They remain that way as long as they are under control of the shepherd. Sheep who don't obey their shepherd may fall into the teeth of the wolf. Sooner or later they'll get themselves into difficulties that may prove fatal.

A sheep is dependent on his shepherd. When in the proximity of wolves, the sheep is doubly dependent because wolves eat sheep. This is important to know.

Wolves

The computer encyclopedia had a great deal to say about wolves.

For instance, there is an alpha-wolf. This is the number #1 wolf. He rules the wolf pack. All the rest of the wolves obey that wolf, or that wolf will kill them. He is the "Alpha-wolf." He is the head of the pack. All the other wolves stair-step down from him in authority.

There is also an alpha female wolf. The alpha female will not allow any of the other females to breed with the alpha-wolf. She will kill them if she can, and will certainly kill their young. This results in the alpha male and the alpha female being the only ones to breed. The pack usually numbers between two and eight, although sometimes a large pack may number thirty-six.

Wolves stake out a hunting territory. They will not allow any other pack to enter into their hunting area. They will fight any wolf who tries to come in. A lone wolf trying to cross through the territory of another wolf pack may be killed.

Wolves Kill Wolves

Wolves have few natural enemies. The biggest killers of wolves are other wolves.

The next biggest killers of wolves are diseases. The reason is that wolves are scavengers. They will eat prey live or dead with few restrictions.

The third biggest killer of wolves is the prey itself. Occasionally an elk will kill a wolf. Occasionally a deer will kill a wolf. Occasionally a ram will kill a wolf. However, most wolves are killed by wolves.

Sheep are peaceful and productive. This is their nature. Wolves gather, kill, rend, and destroy. That is their nature.

How Wolves Got That Way

A wolf gets to be pack leader by being more powerful and killing or defeating any rival. Most pack leaders kill more game than the others. He will kill any wolf that opposes him. He is a destroyer. Other wolves obey him or die. That is how a wolf becomes a pack leader.

Human wolves will kill many other wolves. They will kill much prey, they will steal many cattle and horses and buy lots of wives and have lots of children who will have children like themselves. Like breeds like. They've done that for a thousand generations. Weak, peaceful wolves who are not aggressive die young. The surviving wolf is like his father and his grandfather before him. Like breeds like.

When I was in service, I was a range instructor near Spokane in Washington State. I taught pistol, carbine, and sub-machine gun. The ranges had not been kept in order since World War II and were overgrown with young saplings and undergrowth. Not having spare military personnel, we used civilian prison labor to help clear the ranges. The prisoners from the jails in the American northwest were filled overwhelmingly with red-wolves. That's the way it is.

The jails in New York and Chicago are full of black-wolves. You read in the Wall Street Journal about tan trade-wolves. These trade-wolves were being caught for doing something or other. Like breeds like.

God made sheep. God made wolves. Wolves eat sheep. It's important to know that. Sheep try to keep from being eaten. Sheep don't hate wolves. They will help them if they get in trouble. If they need food, the sheep will feed them. If they break their bones, the sheep will send doctors. The sheep just don't want to be eaten.

How Sheep Got That Way

Sheep have a Shepherd.<sup>2</sup> The Word is the Shepherd. The Shepherd ordered that ALL sheep who commit premeditated murder, rape, or who kidnap - die. For a thousand generations all sheep who committed murder, rape, or kidnaping, or committed capitol crimes forbidden by the Shepherd, have been put to death.

Today's sheep are the result of selective breeding. Like breeds like. The thought of committing premeditated murder is so alien that most sheep can't entertain it. The thought of stealing something in somebody's pocket causes revulsion. This is ingrained in the sheep's very being.<sup>3</sup> That is how sheep got to be sheep.

<sup>2</sup> "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God and the Word was God." John 1:1

A sheep is different from a wolf. It is important to know that a sheep is different from a wolf. It makes no difference what a wolf looks like - or what sort of covering a wolf may have - a wolf is a wolf.

Two Kinds

There are two kinds of people - the wolf and the sheep. Everyone you meet is either a wolf or a sheep. The sheep must be able to tell the difference. A sheep who can't identify a wolf is certain to be eaten.

Wolf Diseases

Such things as the common-cold are present in both sheep and wolves. Beyond this sort of sickness, wolves carry diseases which are uncommon to sheep.

A TV wolf documentary "The Life Of The Wolf" showed a dissected wolf. Their insides were loaded with parasites - worms and flukes. You wonder how a wolf can still function. The wolf is a scavenger. He will eat anything. Wolves carry diseases he gets from the offal he eats. God had a reason for using the example of wolves and sheep. They are descriptive.

The sheep flock has no endemic diseases. They are susceptible to diseases once they catch them, but they have no diseases carried generation after generation that break-out, subside, and break-out again. Individual sheep - perhaps. But wolves are loaded with diseases, inherited diseases that come back generation after generation after generation.

Black wolves have a blood disease called "sickle cell." If a sheep should happen to receive blood that carries this sickle cell trait while on the operating table, it could put him into shock and kill him. Sheep have been telling the Red Cross about this since the 1940s, but the Red Cross still doesn't distinguish between wolf and sheep bloods.

Wall Street tan trade-wolves have about 15 diseases of the nervous system that are inherited. They have all sorts of problems with

3 "I will put my law in ... their hearts; and will be their God, and they shall be my people." Jer 31:33 nervous diseases. They've got over 30 diseases that could possibly be endemic diseases. But at least six that ARE endemic diseases.

Red wolves are allergic to alcohol. The smallest amount can make some of them go crazy - crazy enough to kill someone.

The white slav-wolf in eastern Europe and Russia is also allergic to alcohol. History books relate examples as far back as 1100 where their rulers complained about drunkenness being a bane and a curse. White-wolf countries traditionally have Vodka, but they have countless regulations to regulate its sale and consumption. Regulations are often passed prohibiting any drinking. When these fail it is again strictly regulated. It goes with the turf.

Wolf Mannerisms

To discover which is the superior wolf when two wolves meet, observe how they act. One will smile at the other. One will bow to the other. One will roll over on his back before the other, and tuck his tail between his legs. The one who does not do these things is the superior wolf. The wolf before whom all act in this manner is the pack-leader - the alpha-wolf.

When two human wolves meet, much of the same happens. When the alpha-wolf arrives, the other wolves gather and cheer and hurrah. When an alpha-wolf dies you will see half-page and full-page spreads in the Wall Street Journal mourning his passing. That's what they do. "The alpha-wolf is dead - long live the next alpha-wolf."

Wolf-City

Blaring horns will tell you that you are in wolf-city. Horns blow all the time. People yell and curse at each other.

In a sheep city you hardly ever hear a horn. There is very little traffic noise at all. You get to wolf city and you hear the unnecessary noise - the demanding noise. People yell at you and swear at you to get out of the way. They push into the front of the line to show others that they are at the top of the wolf "pecking order."

To show good manners means subordination. Good manners to a wolf is the same as a fawning "yes, sir," "of course sir," "you go first, sir." The wolf will stalk through a door held open by a sheep and not say "by your leave" or "thank you." He won't say "please" - he "takes" what he wants. To "take" is to be superior. To "give" is to be inferior.

Movies made by wolves portray the hero as never saying "thank you." He never says "please." He never says "by your leave." It would make the hero an inferior. Sheep rules are not wolf rules. One must know the difference.

The Parking Spot & The Wolf

I was trying to park my car in Richmond. At that time I really didn't know what a wolf was - I didn't even know of their existence.

My parking spot was selected and I was preparing to back in, when suddenly a car nosed into my parking spot and its driver leaned on the horn. There was a woman behind the steering wheel. It was clear that I was backing into the parking place. It was my parking spot. Beep! beep! beep! "Get out of the way." "What's the matter with you?"

I said "Gee!" and I got out of the way. Walking to my destination I started thinking "That wasn't very nice." I saw the woman driver who took my parking place and I got up enough nerve, "Hey, you're no lady." She walked on by and called me something really quite unprintable. It was my first experience in meeting a wolf - and I didn't understand what had happened. The world as I had known it had turned upside down.

In New York, I was preparing to go into a museum. In the front of the museum, one wolf was trying to back into a parking spot and another wolf was trying to nose in. There they were, screaming, shouting and cursing at each other. I entered the museum and emerged 45 minutes later, and there they still were - yelling and shouting about whose parking spot it was.

I don't know what wolves do with their time - it seemed then that the time could have been better spent doing something else. This I do know, they aren't going to step down unless they can gain something over you by doing so.

Wolf Heaven

When you look into television and see the fornication, hear the cursing, and witness the infidelity - you are looking into the heart of the wolf. You are seeing heaven as envisioned by him.

Wolf-Policy vs. Sheep-Law

Sheep have a Shepherd. The Shepherd gave the sheep Laws - ten of them. Sheep have "Laws, statutes, and judgments" that brook no evasion. They are cut and dried. DO this, that, and the other.

The Shepherd says; "But if ye will not ... do all these commandments ... I will send wild beasts among you which shall rob you of your children." Lev 26:14-35<sup>4</sup> Beasts will steal your sons and daughters - marry them and take them away. "I will bring the sword against you" and "I will bring the plague against you." And, "I will destroy you from off this land." This is what the Shepherd said.

Wolves are not ruled by law. They are ruled by the alpha-wolf's policy. Individual wolves can do anything not prohibited by the alpha-wolf. They can do anything they can get away with doing. To the wolf - breaking sheep law or the alpha-wolf's policy only becomes serious if caught. Getting caught is everything.

Venereal diseases that are rare among sheep, race through the wolf packs. Wolf TV comics make jokes about virginity of female wolves remarking that "virginity" and female "wolf" are a contradiction of terms.

Among wolves homosexuality is no crime. There's only sheep-law against it. If the alpha-wolf's policy doesn't prohibit it - it will be practiced. If he says there's something wrong with it - it won't be practiced. Right now the policy is - anything goes!

Wolves are fearsome. Their howls at night can make one's blood run cold. The sheep's support is the knowledge that his Shepherd watches. This protection is conditional on the flock's obedience. If sheep insist on wandering from the sheepfold, or let the wolves in - the Shepherd has pronounced the resulting punishment. Obedience brings health and prosperity. Disobedience brings plague and destruction.

Wolves are different. They have no law, only rituals. They have robes, caps, chants, and incense - but no law. They have holy books. They have the Koran, the philosophy of Buddha; they have Hinduism and its belief in reincarnation; they have countless creeds and beliefs, but no law. They have all the creeds, all the beliefs, all the rituals - but all bow down to "policy" - the policy pronounced by the alpha-wolf. His decision is final. The statement of the alpha-wolf settles all disputes. It tolerates no disobedience.

4 NOTE: "Beast" wears clothing. Jonah 3:8; Beast "cries mightily unto God." Jonah 3:8; Beast has hands. Exodus 19:13; Beast capable of mixing with man. Jer. 31:27; Beast keeps the vineyard. Song of Solomon, Chap 1; Jesus called the Syro-Phoenician woman a "dog." Dogs, swine, beasts - ancient words to describe people who eat and breed anything.

Islam's Koran states - no usury. For centuries the alpha-wolf profited from usury, and so the Mohammedans practiced usury. Now, the alpha-wolf says - no longer will Mohammedans practice usury - and today most don't practice usury.

For two hundred years the sheep conquered and ruled the wolves in the Near East. They governed these wolves by paying the alpha-wolf. No more. Other alpha-wolves pay more.

Wolves & The Oil Card

The alpha trade-wolf living in western sheepfolds made an agreement with the near east alpha desert-wolf - an agreement he couldn't refuse. In exchange for becoming suzerain to the western alpha-wolf instead of the "infidel" western-sheep, he would receive $20 a barrel for their oil instead of $2. All he had to do was to seize the sheep's-assets and banish their rule from wolf lands. It was an offer he couldn't refuse.

It's neat, dealing with alpha-wolves. It isn't necessary to deal with the entire pack. The alpha-wolf does that - and that's the way it is.

The orders of the trade-wolves was that the desert-wolves were to fight sheep-rule, and that is what they do. They have been entirely successful. The sheep have been banished from the desert-wolves' lands, and the sheep don't even know that they are banished or that they lost a war.

Wolf Matriarchal Societies

Most wolf societies are matriarchal societies. They trace their ancestry through the female. It is the only way that descent is guaranteed. The female KNOWS who the father is. The male wolf has no idea.

Sheep societies are the only patriarchal societies. Wolves living among sheep may pretend to a patriarchal society, but they are matriarchal.

Wolves Bring Plague

Wolves bring plague. The Word which is the Shepherd says that if the sheep do not obey - the Word will bring the plague.<sup>5</sup> If strangers are allowed in the sheepfold - you'll learn their ways.<sup>6</sup> The yellow- wolf brought the Black Plague. It wiped out between half and two thirds of all the sheep in Europe. The Bubonic Plague was brought by the desert-wolves. It wiped out between half and two-thirds of all Europe. Anybody could walk down the street and claim a house. One could almost walk out into the countryside and claim a manor, one thousand acres with a battle-tower. There were few left alive to claim it.

The Syphilis Plague wiped out half of Europe's sheep population. It is now believed that it was a non-venereal kind contracted from red-wolves by Christopher-Sheep's crew. Pre-Christopher graves of these red- wolves have been discovered that contain skeletons showing syphilis lesions. This is why it is believed that the red-wolves are the source of the plague. It decimated Europe.

Today, a plague has been brought to the sheep called AIDS. It is believed to be a black-wolf disease and is protected by the trade-wolf, neither of whom finds fault with the cause - only the effects.

Sheep-law says that if plague does not correct the conduct of the sheep, then their Shepherd will bring the sword.<sup>7</sup> There is no instance known where the Shepherd has not kept his promises.

Wolf-Study

If all the wolves were outside the sheepfold - wolf-study could be left to watchmen. But wolves now roam at will throughout the sheepfold and everyone a sheep meets is either a wolf or a sheep. It used to be that when a female sheep's car broke down on the side

---

5 "If thou wilt not ... do all the words of the law ... the Lord will make thy plagues ... great plagues, and of long continuance, and sore sicknesses ... all the diseases of Egypt ... they shall cleave unto thee. Also every sickness, and every plague ... until thou be destroyed. And ye will be left few in number ... because thou wouldest not obey the voice of the lord thy God ... ye shall be plucked from off the land ... and thou shall fear day and night, and shalt have none assurance of thy life." Deut 58:66

---

6 "They ... were mingled among the heathen, and learned their works. ... they sacrificed their sons and their daughters ... and the land was polluted with blood." Ps 106:35

---

7 "But if ye will not ... do all these commandments; ... I will bring a sword upon you." Lev 26:14-35 of the road that a sheep-in-armor would stop and help. Today, it is just as likely to be a wolf-on-patrol. It makes a difference who it is who stops. It is far more fun to study sheep hero's like Lew Wetzel. He was a ram who knew more about the American red-wolves than the red-wolves knew.

Aëtius, the commander of the Roman legions, was a West-German-ram. He had lived in the Hun-wolf camp as a hostage. He knew more about Hun-wolves than the the Hun-wolves knew. Theodoric the Great was an East-German-ram. He had spent a lifetime studying Hun-wolves. He, too, knew more about Hun-wolves than Hun-wolves did. Sheep-study is fine, but, survival against wolf-attacks requires that sheep study wolves.

Like it or not sheep are going to have to deal with wolves. The wolves will see to that. They are going to have to learn what wolves do and what they don't do - if they are to avoid being eaten. Sheep have spent a lifetime learning what sheep do. They should have this down pat. Now, they must learn the rest of the story.

Wolves - Nasty To Wolves

Wolves take prey from other wolves. Wolves are not afraid of sheep. They eat sheep. Wolves are definitely afraid of other wolves.

I was a stockbroker for 33 years. I know pretty much who has money in my community and who doesn't. I've seen investors living humble lives who had stock accounts worth millions. I knew of a trade-wolf paper carrier whose estate was worth almost a million, and he wore the shabbiest of clothes. Wolves are afraid of other wolves. They camouflage themselves. Generally, it is NOT the wolf making the big display who has the most money - that is unless he is the actual alpha-wolf - and there are not many of them. The rest keep a low profile. They want to keep what they've got - they want to keep it from other wolves.

The stock certificate is the result of the wolf's attempt to conceal his holdings from both the prey and from other wolves. It used to require an act of parliament to incorporate a company. When one incorporates, one limits liability to the assets of the company and at the same time makes it virtually impossible to find out who the owners are. Today, anyone can incorporate. The IRS was created to strip away the stock-certificate cover and keep track of prey and warn of a rising competitor. Collecting income is only one of its jobs.

To avoid IRS scrutiny, wolves originated the international bank account. That is the wolf's attempt to get his holdings out of sight of other wolves. It also is an early warning alarm if a sheep is becoming too economically powerful.

Who ever heard of a yellow-wolf billionaire? There are lots of them. Most live under sheep protection in Hong Kong. There are corporations being bought out wholesale by yellow- wolves - billionaires from Hong Kong operating under sheep protection, something they would never dare do openly in their homeland. If they did, the yellow alpha-wolf would descend on them and take everything they have. That's why, at home, the intelligent yellow-wolf goes into virtual economic hibernation. He can't advance in wolf-land without being seen by the alpha-wolf. The history of these wolves is that as soon as they become noticed, an alpha-wolf will swoop down and take everything he has. The greatest enemy of the wolf - is the wolf.

Robert-Wolf, the flashy billionaire media owner, has been discovered to be an agent of a wolf-nation. His 2,000 newspapers and TVs were used to advance the interest of those wolves worldwide - to put it in a favorable light. The wolf-media reported that he was "skimming" from the companies that he was managing. The international wolf-banks actually owned those newspapers. He was transferring the money of the media companies he was managing into his own companies. They found him floating around in the Atlantic Ocean.

That is how wolves settle disputes. The greatest enemy of the wolf - is the wolf. The more ostentatious and pretentious the wolf - the more likely he is to be a hireling. To this day no one knows who the alpha-wolf was who ordered the demise of Robert- Wolf, the media king. Incidentally, the greatest enemy of the black "Crips" are the black "Bloods." For every black-wolf killed by a sheep, five thousand black-wolves are killed by other black- wolves.<sup>8</sup>

Wolf Mobility

Wolves are highly mobile. They go from one hunting area to another. On a recent trip I noticed that on the airplane 30-40% of the passengers were wolves. Look around when in a terminal, train station, or bus station and see for yourself. Wolves are very mobile. They are always on the move, going here and there, running back and forth, paroling their hunting area, seeking prey. It is the nature of the predator. The predator is always hunting.

He keeps most of his wealth easily portable. He will have cash in his apartment. He usually lives in an apartment rather than owning a home. He will have stock certificates and CDs. After accumulated wealth reaches a certain level, he owns corporations and businesses. Even at this level he keeps most of his holdings so that they can be turned into cash in a short time. Most Hong Kong corporations can be quickly converted into cash and the owners can move on to new hunting areas. Right now, Canada is their choice. They find no problem in moving their wealth.

Wolf Evil Eye

When two dogs meet they will look each other in the eye very briefly and then look away. The reason for the brief look is that when two dogs stare at each other it means - FIGHT! Dogs are careful not to look each other in the eye. If you want trouble with a dog - stare at him long enough - and sooner or later that dog is going to become nervous and he will turn and look you in the eye. Then, you'd better look away, or you've got a problem. That's really not necessary unless you really want problems. The alpha-wolf is different. He will look any of the other wolves in the pack in the eye - the rest don't dare do it. Travelogues on wolves reveal that the alpha-wolf will stand and stare away into the distance. He won't stare at the subservient wolf groveling at his feet. When he does, it means that that wolf is going to die.

Wolves feel that they must do something to ward off the evil that results from the stare of an alpha-wolf. One such defense is the gesture of holding out one's fist, and raising the first and last fingers. This is supposed to neutralize the "evil-eye." This gesture is even made into a talisman to be worn around the neck.

The half-moon talisman hung on a chain around the neck does the same. It is used mostly by desert-wolves.

Brown-wolves in southern Italy, now "honorary sheep," usually use the cross. Among sheep you see an occasional cross but they aren't needed. The wolf needs them. They really need something to ward off the evil eye. The major enemy of wolves is other wolves.

Sheep Law

Sheep law is simple. There are ten basic laws. To implement them are statutes and judgments. The statutes and judgments are adjudication and enforcement of the ten basic rules. That's all they are. No "person," no "ruler," no "judge" pronounces sheep-law. Only the Shepherd. His laws are ancient and are the same forever.<sup>9</sup>

Wolves have no law. They obey alpha-wolf "policy." Wolves must avoid becoming entangled in sheep laws if they are to eat sheep. Most alpha-wolves have law degrees. They don't study wolf-law because there is no such thing as wolf-law. They study sheep-law. The purpose of studying sheep-law is to get to the very edge of sheep-law without crossing over and becoming outlaw.

Two hundred years ago it was rare for more than a few laws to be passed by the sheep in any one year. Today, every session of Congress passes a thousand statutes, sometimes two thousand, even ten thousands statutes are passed which nullify or slightly change the basic sheep-law to benefit wolves.

Wolf Reaction To Sheep Law

A friend of mine in Virginia came from a well-to-do family. His sister married a wolf. They visited the office and I commented on it. They lived at the ancestral home down in the county. One day she was found dead - a .22 bullet in her head. The husband soon disappeared. It was noticed that many of the valuable furnishings of the place disappeared also.

The brother, a dogged individual, kept after the wolf. He had the money and hired detectives. The detectives discovered evidence.

Efforts were made to extradite the wolf to the United States for trial. They are still waiting. Wolf-states do not turn their own over to sheep-states to be tried under sheep-law. The pack is loyal to its own. Justice is a relative thing. What to a sheep is worthy of punishment may be to the wolf-pack an act of merit.

<sup>9</sup> "For I the Lord, do not change." Mal 3:6. "Jesus Christ the same yesterday, today, and forever." Heb 13:8. "The scripture cannot be broken." John 10:35.

In California, a desert-wolf was blown up by a trade-wolf. Two or three trade-wolves were implicated. They disappeared and reappeared in their Middle East State. The U.S. has asked for them to be extradited for trial a number of times. They are still waiting. Wolves seldom betray one of their own to sheep when they have done nothing that wolves consider wrong.

The trade-wolves of Russia allied with the white-wolves to exterminate Russian-sheep. At least 35,000,000 were hunted down and killed, or died later in gulags. Since then Communism has been overthrown, and the wolf-pack is said to have "reformed," but the Russian-wolves cannot seem to find a single wolf guilty of participating in the earlier orgy of sheep-killing. Thirty- five million dead and no one is guilty. There are no Nuremberg trials being held for sheep-killers. The wolf knows of only one crime - "wolf-killing." Wolf- killing is an atrocity - sheep- killing is no crime: it's what wolves do. What to sheep is an atrocity is to wolves an occupation. Wolves eat sheep - that's what they do.

Wolf Reaction To Wolf-Killers

Wolves kill wolves. Wolves kill sheep. But, wolves will not tolerate a sheep killing a wolf. The newspapers are full of the horrors of a Rodney Wolf being beaten by sheep-police. The wolf-howl complains for months on end. But stories of sheep-police who are killed by wolves are dismissed after a casual mention. Firemen killed by wolves are given the same treatment.

In Colorado, a media-wolf was ambushed and killed. It was blamed on a sheep. Wolves kill wolves so often that they receive only cursory investigation. But, a media-wolf killing is serious. A Robert-Wolf media-mogul killing by alpha-wolves is something one leaves strictly alone, but a local media-wolf killing that could conceivably be done by an irate sheep is something else. Such a thing would set a precedent and must be delt with instantly! This particular media-wolf killing was investigated by SEVENTY investigators! They arrived from all over the country. Seventy!

At last, after a long investigation, the wolf-agency announced the capture of a ram. The investigators alleged that they had found a sheep who had a history of anti-wolfism, and in the process of ransacking his house, they found the very weapon that fired bullets that were the exact match with those used in the wolf-killing. The wolf-tests proved it. The wolf-lab confirmed that it was so. The wolf-media made a Rodney King case of it. A sheep had killed a wolf!

A show trial was held. All stops were pulled. The ram's protests of innocence was smothered as the wolf-howl - week after week, month after month - triumphantly broadcast how another anti-wolf sheep was brought to justice and punished. The story was told over and over. It was shown on T-V, as reruns to school-lambs. The lesson to the flock - hands off wolves - especially media-wolves! The lesson was hammered home.

Thirty years ago a black-wolf agitator was shot. A shotgun was found at the scene of the shooting. It was alleged that a single fingerprint was found on the gun that belonged to a ram who had previously made anti-wolf comments. He was arrested. The arresting wolves refused to believe that the shotgun had been stolen out of his truck and they scoffed at law-enforcement witnesses who swore that he was in another town at the time of the shooting. He was tried twice, and still a third time for the same thing.

The 30,000 assaults on sheep by wolves each day are ignored while an alleged attack on a wolf will not be tolerated. A guilty party will be found to make an example. Never forgive - never forget.

Wolf Intelligence / Propaganda Network

Wolves have the best intelligence-propaganda system in the world. It is called the "wolf-howl." Packs are in constant contact with each other. This is important to know.

When chasing a quarry from one hunting area to another hunting area, wolves may not enter another wolf-pack's area, but as a courtesy they notify the other pack that the quarry is coming.

If the quarry is simply prey, the receiving wolves are quickly provided with information needed to do what wolves do. If the prey is of trophy size, more information is available: when and where born, parents, schools, business, politics, tax files, bank account size; investments. This is basic information kept on all trophy-size prey in a pack hunting area.

If the prey is considered "important," every wolf-howl story written about the quarry is made available from local wolf-howl files, letters to the editor, lists of telephone calls made by the prey are instantly available.<sup>10</sup> The bigger the prey the more help available. "The Anti-Wolfism League" and the "Federal Bureau of Wolves" add in the contents of their extensive files, and the "Wolf Defense League" along with Local Municipal Wolf-Forces may be put on alert. By the time the quarry is picked up and chased along by the receiving pack, the receiving pack is ready. They know all about the prey. It is interesting to note that the prey is often not aware that it is being hunted. The multi- billionaire "Bunker-sheep" from Texas never knew that he was in trouble until he was pulled down and the pack swarmed all over him. Long established regulations were broken to get him, and when protests were made, the wolf-courts agreed that it was all "legal." From billions to nickels and dimes took only an instant, and the kill was quickly blacked out by the wolf-howl.

There are sheep - and there are wolves. Wolves eat sheep - that's what they do. They are good at what they do.

In Haiti, the black-wolves who fought with the sheep were in constant communication with the black-wolf rebels on the other side. At the same time they were fighting and killing each other during the day, at night they were meeting and talking with each other. That's what wolves do. You don't have to understand it.<sup>11</sup>

While WWI was going on, Nicholai L. Wolf was taken from neutral Switzerland into Germany, which was at war with Russia. The sealed train traveled across Germany. Nicholai Wolf got off that train, boarded a Russian train, and sped away on his mission to overthrow Russia. Not a ripple, not a hitch, and the armies of the 10 "Wolf-howls" serve the triple purposes of (1) "demonizing and outlawing" targeted prey and inciting the flock to attack those not politically correct; (2) creating favorable sheep- attitudes toward wolves, and most important (3) gathering intelligence needed to hunt prey. Local media files are unbelievably extensive, as one would expect in intelligence centers. Reporters double as intelligence agents who insist on their right to go everywhere and see everything - and record and file it. The geographical area covered by the local media is usually the hunting area dominated by an alpha-wolf. A wolf-howl "chain" delineates the larger hunting area, and the conglomerate media owning hundreds of wolf-howls may combine entire nations in a hunting area.

two countries were killing each other. That's the wolf system at work.

During the War Between The States the northern army recruited black-wolves for soldiers.<sup>12</sup> In the South black-wolf slaves worked for the Southern-sheep. Enemies during the day, they talked at night. There were few movements of either army not known by the black-wolves. After the war the black-wolves of both sides allied themselves with the janissaries of the New York trade-wolves to prey on the conquered sheep. The war was "just business" and no one harbored ill will.

Black-Wolf Separatism

After the War, the black-wolves who had been placed over the sheep, plus their allies the New York janissaries, began to persecute the rest of the southern black-wolves along with the southern-sheep. The southern-sheep allied themselves with southern black-wolves to overthrow Reconstruction.

"Segregation," so decried by the wolf-howl, was the payoff given black-wolf allies. It was "black self-determination." Black-wolves in Tennessee openly demanded the protection it afforded. Black grocery stores, black dry-goods stores, black clothiers, black doctors and dentists came into existence and were guaranteed a clientele by the sheep. They were protected from cut-throat sheep and trade-wolf competition. There were two worlds - a black-wolf world and a white-sheep world. Raiders and crossovers were punished. There were two social hierarchies, two religious hierarchies, two everything - except political. The sheep demanded that they and only they rule.<sup>13</sup> After the earlier chaos of wolf rule - peaceful sheep-rule was agreeable to the black-wolves - for a while.

Anti-Wolfism

Sheep don't hate wolves. In WWII the Germans had a military organization called the SS. The SS was made up of recruits from 32 different countries. There were Danes, Dutch, Germans, Swedes, French, English, Italians, Slavs, and Mohammedans. There were several Russian divisions in the SS. Most of these latter were wolf divisions. The rule was that all people are entitled to self-determination. All people, including wolves, are entitled to self-determination. Oppressed wolves, by fighting the alpha-wolf, were fighting for the right of self-determination after the war. Sheep don't hate wolves. They just don't want to be eaten. It is important to say it again.

Wolves eat sheep - that's what they do. In order to eat sheep they must get into the sheepfold. If they cannot get into the sheepfold, they cannot eat sheep. Therefore, the job of the wolf is to do everything possible to get into the sheepfold. The sheep must do everything possible to keep the wolves from getting into the sheepfold. This is the reason for the constant conflict.

Wolf Concealment

A very simple way wolves have to enter the sheepfold is to camouflage themselves. The standard way is for the wolf who had been a camel driver, to shave his beard, take off his sheet, take a bath, and put on a coat and tie, and say that he is a suntanned sheep. He even learns English. If he is accepted as a sheep, he is then allowed to enter the sheepfold to do what wolves do.

The duty of the wolf who has gotten into the sheepfold is to open the gate to other wolves so the pack can be reunited inside the sheepfold. That's what he does. First the she-wolf and the pups. Next the rest of the pack - the uncles, aunts and cousins. Next the distant cousins. Finally, all the rest of the pack - all six million of them.

The easiest way is to bribe the gatekeeper. If you bribe the gatekeeper, he will throw the gate open and boatloads of wolves will come floating in from all over the place and soon peaceful sheepfolds are transformed into raucous wolf-dens.

Wolf Becoming Honorary-Sheep

The best way of all for a wolf to get into the sheepfold is for a wolf to become a sheep. This requires magic performed by church-sheep. First they get a wolf-applicant. Wolf-applicants are always plentiful. Next, the church-sheep loudly proclaims that he is about to "save a wolf's soul," which used to mean the sheep whom the Shepherd "Saved from our enemies, and from the hand of all that hate us!" Luke 1:71 - meaning sheep who are saved from "wolves." For a church-sheep to save a wolf from himself sounds difficult. But a cleric who is part wizard insists that he can do it. He says that he can take a wolf created by 1,000 generations of selective breeding and miraculously change him into a sheep created by 1,000 generations of selective breeding.

If challenged, the wizard says that it will be God who will perform the miracle. He then pronounces magic words and makes the wolf repeat them. Then he sprinkles the wolf with water and announces to the world and all those who believe that the cleric and his establishment-church in truth "rules as God," that the wolf has been transformed into a sheep.<sup>1</sup>

There is a hush of expectancy as the congregation waits for something to happen. But nothing happens. All appears to remain as God had made it in the beginning. But the clerical-sheep stoutly maintains that the wolf has been changed inside, even though the outside remains the same. It is much like the "Emperor's New Clothes." The wolf looks the same - but the clerical-sheep insists that his special powers obtained from god has enabled the wolf definitely to become a sheep. Those who don't believe will not go to sheep-heaven, to which the clerical-sheep claims to have the keys.

The churchman has created an "honorary sheep." Wolves are noted for paying substantial tribute in exchange for this service. Sometimes the entire sanctuary mortgage can be paid with it. New income from whatever source is always welcome. The officiating churchman generally receives his portion.

With this priest sanctioned change of status, the wolf is no longer a wolf, he has become an "honorary-sheep," and may now come and go in the sheepfold just as any other sheep and is entitled to all rights and privileges that accrue to being a member of the flock. The establishment-church who "rules as God" says so.

By transforming an ordinary wolf into an honorary-sheep, the sorcerer has created a new watchman to stand watch over the sheepfold. The "honorary-sheep" now takes other wolves in turn and transforms them into "honorary-sheep." "Wolves For Jesus" chapters spring up. They call themselves "completed wolves" and swear to no longer eat sheep.

The things studiously ignored are the countless examples where the magic didn't take, and the wolves, tiring of the charade, throw off their magic sheep-skins and again attack the flock.<sup>1</sup>

The search is still on for the sheep-magician who will accept responsibility for letting wolves into the sheepfold. The search is still on for a congregation which, on discovering what has been done, has refused the wolf-money.<sup>2</sup> The magician shrugs his shoulders saying that he has done no wrong. He says that the wolf did not have enough faith, or that the sheep were prejudiced, and goes his way unrepentant, having no intention of returning the "price of the dog."

Sheep Reformation

Catholic priest reformers began questioning 400 years ago whether or not the church was in truth authorized to be the one who "rules as God." The Word was their monopoly. It took wars and millions of dead to release the Word that "Saved from our enemies, and from the hand of all that hate us" - from being hidden. At last, the Shepherd's Word was pried out of their tight grasp to save us from the wolves.

The reformers opened the Scriptures, taught the Word briefly, and then the establishment church, both Protestant and Catholic, aided by the gleeful wolves, slammed the book shut again to prevent the Word from pulling them from their gold-plated mountains where they lived. They meant to keep the blood-money wrung from the sheep who put faith in their magic. Their pretense of being "he rules for God" was to continue for a while longer.

1 The "honorary-sheep" Timor "the scourge," dropped the "honorary" bit and converted to Islam after having pointed out to him in the Word where wolves are not allowed into the sheepfold.

2 "Thou shalt not bring ... the price of a dog into the house of the Lord thy God for any vow." Deut 23:18

Beginning some two decades ago, the Word once again began to escape the clutches of the ecclesiastics. The sheep who had been attacked and who were bleeding, asked WHY? Why was the Word not held high to protect them? WHO was concealing it? Why did the ones who claimed that they were "he who rules as God" - why did they not protect the sheep?

These questions are being asked today and they are causing consternation in the establishment churches. Magic-wolves, sodomites, whoremongers, thieves, and false-priests have all closed ranks with the wolf-packs to protect their stolen prey from being regained by the sheep. Both pulpit and wolf-howl grind out dis-information and lies so that the sheep will not discover that neither of them are who they say they are. Their efforts have succeeded in turning many of the sheep away from their Shepherd.

They tell the flock one thing while the Word tells the opposite. These predators know that the flock can only act on what is fed into its data banks. If they are fed only lies - they can only act on lies. Churches who insist on teaching the Word are punished by having their tax exemption removed. To protect their tax-exemption, most establishment churches have turned inward to commune with their emptiness. God's sheep have deserted the establishment church in droves in their quest to discover "The Word that was God."

Now, most tall steeples signify nothing but a monument of the dead communing with their dead. They do not teach the Laws, Statutes, and Judgments of the Word. They do this to comply with wolf-policy. Many of them consider the wolves as "he rules as God." Other consider the wolves to be god on earth. To these lost ones - God is dead.

Censored

Churches refuse to teach many Bible quotes today for fear of offending the establishment. I've compiled a list of them. Biblical law should be held up: if it is in the Bible, it is in there for a purpose. The Bible fits together perfectly. To leave out major subjects is to do a disservice. It distorts the Word.

It is important to be able to answer the many people who are beginning to ask questions. More still will be asking questions in the near future as people see the flocks being torn by the wolves.

If the reader wants a free copy, send a stamped self- addressed envelope to Bible Tracts, P.O. Box 997, Lynchburg, Virginia, 24505, and ask for "Censored Bible Scriptures."

Anti-Wolfism Denied

Wolves eat sheep. That's what they do. In order to eat sheep wolves must gain entry into the sheepfold.

If you run all of the wolves out of the sheepfold, they will immediately try to get back in. Because if they cannot get into the sheepfold, they cannot eat sheep. And that's what wolves do - wolves eat sheep.

Sheep try to keep from being eaten by wolves.

To put it another way: sheep don't hate wolves. There is almost no anti-wolfism in the land today. Sheep just have an unreasoning fear of being eaten.

Wolves Storming Sheepfolds

The oldest method used by wolves to gain entry into the sheepfold is to gather all the packs together like an old- fashioned football team, lock arms, lower heads, and crash into the sheepfold. Attila the Wolf stormed through into the heart of France using this method, and Genghis- Wolf sent his Golden Horde to devour dozens of wolf-packs and sheep- flocks and demolish the vaunted Teutonic rams in a frenzy of carnage and conquest.

Watching an approaching multitude of wolves howling for one's blood causes one to quickly realize that he has a problem, that it is not a theoretical problem, that the problem is very visible and on the way, and that it will soon be sitting in his lap. A mass invasion of this sort is easily understood by everyone. The sheep understands that to survive he must immediately join with other sheep and do everything in his power if he is to avoid being eaten.

The "storm" method is expensive. It costs lives - both sheep and wolf. If there is one thing wolves try to avoid it is to risk injury needlessly. It is only when they have overwhelming strength that they will try something like that.

A wolf will seldom attack a moose or an elk, frontally. He will attract the attention of the elk while other members of the wolf pack attack from the blind side. If the wolf is hurt, the other wolves may kill him.

The greatest enemy of wolves is - wolves! This is important to know because while we think we have problems, we don't know what problems really are. A wolf is always looking over his shoulder. Wolves will co-operate to get the elk, but once the elk is pulled down, the alpha-wolf eats, while the rest stand around. The elk is his! After he is through taking what he wants, there is a big squabble among the rest for the remainder. But that's what wolves do.

The second way to get into the sheepfold is to bribe the gate-keeper - the king. That's what they did with Oliver Cromwell. That's what they have done to our various presidents. It is easy to do if you know how. It saves a lot of bloodshed, and the price is quite cheap. In very decadent sheepfolds the gate-keepers have actually been seen to grovel on the ground and lick the trees where wolves have been and put wolf-skin on their heads to show the wolves how eager they are to open the sheepfold gates. This amuses the wolves - flock-leaders begging the wolves to eat the sheep in their charge. These self-proclaimed flock leaders dependant on wolf largess openly say that wolves are the ones the Shepherd appointed as "he rules as God," and not the sheep.

The usual way of entry is disguise. Take the turban off, cut the long locks, shave, take a bath, put on after shave lotion, learn some English, and walk through and say, "I am a sheep." There are sheep all around who will believe that. Sheep are kings and priests, most have a little plot of ground that is their kingdom. Unless somebody disturbs them, they will live and let live. That's the nature of sheep. Sheep tend to be peaceful.

If a false shepherd gives the sheep a false signal, the sheep don't know anything else to do than to stay still and tend to their little plot of ground. Until their Shepherd tells them differently, they ignore these strange wolf looking creatures walking back and forth on the streets.

The easiest method of gaining entry into the sheepfold is to become an "honorary-sheep." The effort is a bit antiquated today when sheep are taught to bow down when a wolf walks by and say how nice wolves are, but it is still an accepted technique handed down.

Goth-Sheep & Wolves

All of us have heard about Gothic architecture, Gothic literature. The name "Goth" means "God's People." "You will bear my name." "Goth" - "Gott" - "God," "Güt" - "good." All come from "Goth." Scandinavians, Germans, Spanish, French, Italian, early Russians - all are descended from Goths - the early East German sheep.

The Goth-sheep rams conquered Spain. Then they were pushed into the northwest corner of Spain when the desert-wolves stormed through on their way to France.

The desert-wolves ruled Spain for almost half a thousand years, but the Goths gradually drove them out, a little at a time. Many wolves were left behind when the main pack abandoned Spain.

The long wars had left the Goth-sheep few in number and they were desperately short of workers. They needed workers to work the fields, to tend the vineyards.

The Establishment Church claimed suzerainty over all the land - "ownership" dating back to the latter day Christian era of the Roman Empire. The Goths now occupied land claimed by them.<sup>1</sup> Much of the "Church land" was badly neglected. Much was devastated from the wars. It produced no income. The choice the church had was to send the surrendered wolves packing after their fellows who had departed to North Africa, or keep them to work the land. The scriptures were quite clear on the point; strangers were not allowed.<sup>2</sup>

The "Goth-sheep" didn't know this because the Church forbade them to read the scriptures. The immediate fact of life was that if wolves could be put to work on the land, the land would produce an

1 Rome conquered the world. The conquered gods were taken to Rome and a temple was built for each of them. Conquered gods became Roman gods ruled by the Roman Emperor. The Roman Emperor was "god on earth." He had to become a god to have the authority to rule the other gods. Roman confiscation, usury, and taxes converted Roman conquests into the personal property of the Emperor. The Emperor's "civil service" managed these vast holdings. The emperor became "christian." The civil service became "christian." The name "province" was changed to "diocese." When the "emperor" disappeared - the civil service continued on through invasion, flood, and disaster. It elected its own ruler. All was as it was before. The Roman civil service continued to faithfully do what it was created to do. It claimed its "christian" authority by claiming that it was "He rules as God." To disobey the church was to disobey God.

2 "They shall not dwell in thy land, lest they make thee sin against me." I Ki 4:21 income. Otherwise, the land would remain desolate and unproductive.

The "Church" sent instructions that it was not only permissible, but desirable to convert the wolves into sheep and put them to work as soon as possible. So they did. Missionary work was done with the sword, cross, and stake. Those who saw the light were instructed in the mysteries of their new god. They repeated the magic words and overnight the two strains of wolves living in Spain magically became sheep.<sup>1</sup> They now had "sheep-hearts." Word was sent to the church that there was no longer a single wolf left in the Spanish sheepfold.

Soon after that optimistic report, all Spain went up in flames as the wolves threw off their sheepskins and ravaged the sheepfold. The wolf-revolts were put down with extreme difficulty - and centuries passed. The wolves learned that it was wise to pretend to be good sheep.

Going along with the charade and pretending to be sheep, magic-wolves advanced to the top levels of the church and government. It was then the king received disturbing information. Wolves in sheepskins, long guaranteed by the Church to be loyal "sheep," sheep who went to sheep-church every Sunday, sheep who repeated magic words every Sunday - were really wolves. They said so themselves. They had formed dens and were meeting together and following the dictates of their own alpha-wolf. They were hatching plots against the sheep; they were raiding the sheep under cover of their sheepskins. The wolves had wolf-dens within the sheepfold. They were a state within a state.

Infuriated, the sheep-king expelled them. One wolf type - the desert-wolf - was expelled to North Africa, Egypt, and Turkey. The other type - the trade-wolf - was allowed to go where he wished. Some went to Sicily, others to Holland, South America, Constantinople, and Southern Russia to join their fellows living there.<sup>2</sup>

This began a split between the sheep-king and the "Church," a split never completely mended. Church chicanery was responsible for all this upheaval. The wolves were there with the Church's blessing. The bloodshed and destruction was the result of Church policy. The Church was the one who always protected the wolves from harm. The question was asked, "How do you take a wolf and make a sheep out of him?" A wolf is a wolf and a sheep is a sheep.

Clerics loyal to the king and having his ear, looked again at Church arguments permitting wolves to live in the land. The scripture the Church quoted was: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." Mark 16:15-16

The church used its claim of being Israel<sup>1</sup> as its license to rule as God on earth, and to declare that without any qualifications, the above Biblical quote was an order from God. This is how Churches justified allowing wolves to be kept in the land and used to work church properties. It was not to their benefit to quote the limitations set: "Go not unto the gentiles, and to any city of the Samaritans enter ye not", but "Go to the lost sheep of the house of Israel and to them only."

What more is needed to make it clearer? The only way wolves could be foisted on unsuspecting Spanish-sheep was to prevent them from reading the prohibitions in the Bible.

If they had read ALL of the scripture, they would have found that the Church instructions meant the opposite from what they were declared to mean. "Go forth into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature" - OF THE SHEEP. Sheep are sheep and wolves are wolves. The scriptures are clear. "Don't throw pearls before swine, lest they turn and rend you." The Church disobeyed and threw pearls and the wolves turned and rent the Spanish-sheep. The Shepherd said they would. They did.

Wolves Study Sheep

Wolves study sheep as closely as a farmer studies the lineage of his livestock. A farmer will know the lineage of a horse or a cow for 15 or 20 generations. Sometimes he won't even know who his own grandfather is, but he will know about his cows, because that's what a farmer does. Farmers eat cows. Wolves eat sheep, they know about the sheep. Wolves can often trace sheep ancestry. They know where they come from, what they do, how much money they've got, what business they are in; they study his laws, they know what the sheep can do and what the sheep can't do. They know all about the sheep. That's what wolves do.

Wolves number sheep so that they can keep track of them. Look inside the lower lip of a sheep and you will find a number tattooed. Sometimes it is found in the ear or on a card in his back pocket. The sheep must have this wolf-number or he cannot collect social security, cash a check, sell stock, get a loan, or buy a house. The sheep must have this number to buy or sell.

Wolves study sheep-religion. They know that the sheep-religion are the pronouncements of the sheep's Shepherd - the Law - pronouncements which never change.<sup>1</sup> "In the beginning was the WORD, and the word was with God, and the WORD was God." John 1:1, and "The WORD was made flesh, and dwelt among us." John 1:14 This contrasts with a fact the wolf must live with - the alpha-wolf. This is the leader the wolf must obey and make happy even when he changes his mind every day. It is obvious to the wolf that the world-views of wolf and sheep are absolutely incompatible and alien to each other. Still, wolves know the sheep laws and prophecies contained in the Word. It's their job to know. Not only that - it is conceivable that the sheep's Shepherd might be able to do the things he said that he would do. Things like "The house of Jacob shall be a fire, and the house of Joseph a flame, and the house of Esau for stubble ... and there shall not be any remaining of the house of Esau." Obadiah 15- 18.

It is disconcerting to have a strange God declare that he is coming after you. Wolves have to watch for the "evil eye," blood- sucking "vampires," "werewolves," and now a hostile God who has threatened to burn wolves like stubble. Wolves are not stupid. They took the Word that disobedient sheep gave them and have read it. They know what it says.

The Word tells the sheep; "Go ye not into the way of the gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not; But go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel." Matt 10:5,6

It tells them; "Give not that which is holy unto the dogs, neither cast ye your pearls before swine, lest they trample them under their feet, and turn again and rend you." Matt 7:6

How will they turn and rend? Wolves learn that while God made both Adam and the wolves, God blessed Adam and his descendants

1 "For I the Lord, do not change." Mal 3:6

- and He blessed Isaac and his descendants, and God said "I loved Jacob, and I hated Essau." Malachi 1:1

This is being friendly to sheep, but not to wolves. After revealing his "anti-wolfism," the Shepherd of the sheep pronounces judgment; "The house of Jacob shall be a fire ... and the house of Essau for stubble ... and there shall not be any remaining of the house of Essau." Obadiah 15-18.

This is bad news. A big curse! A coming holocaust! How can it be avoided? If the object to be destroyed cannot be found, it cannot be destroyed. In other words, the object to be destroyed must be disguised so that it appears to be something else.

In ancient days, sheep's blood was believed to have magical properties.<sup>1</sup> Further, it is written that the blood of an innocent lamb without blemish caused the plagues of Egypt to pass over. If it did it before, it might work again.

The reason blood is used as a protection is easy to find: "For the life of the flesh is in the blood." Lev 17:11, "The blood is the life." Deut 12:23 The blood we are now talking about is the blood of those blessed by God. The "life" that is in this blood is blessed by God. If the "cursed-blood" were concealed - concealed by mixing it with the "blessed-blood" with the life in it - God might not be able to find the cursed blood to destroy it. It might be worth the effort. After all, being "burned like stubble" isn't something a wolf looks forward to.

The disappearance without trace of young lambs having no blemish causes this old wives tale to be believed by a surprising number of people. Lambs regularly disappear by the tens of thousands and are never found. Some wonder how it is possible for tens of thousands of lambs to disappear without trace? The wolf-howl makes much over the occasional one that is recovered from a divorced parent who kidnaped his own offspring, but nothing is said about the others. The wolf-howl has never been able to discover where a wolf was guilty of participating in such a gruesome act. Even harder for narrow-minded sheep to understand is that the phenomenon seldom occurs where there are no wolves.

The black-wolves of Haiti have a ritual called "Voodoo." The Encyclopedia Britanica, 14th EB Vol 23, p.254, "Voodoo," has this to say about Voodoo:

<sup>1</sup> "Pharaoh's minister ... took the infants ... of Israel ... and the physicians killed them and applied them to the plague." Jasher 76:31-32

"The name given to certain magical practices, superstitions, and secret rites prevalent among the negroes of the W. Indies, notably in the republic of Haiti ... obscene rites involving the use of human blood, preferably that of a white child, were considered features of this religion."

The rituals of other wolf-packs also contain references to "ritual sacrifice," "ritual murder," and "blood accusation." Kali, "The Black One," wife of the Hindu god Shiva, is said to have overcome Rhak-tavija by drinking all his blood. Apparently, such things do go on. Of course, such accusations are all denied.

Still, some paranoid sheep suspect that there may be something behind all the stories, a dark conspiracy in which wolves may be attempting to disguise themselves with sheep blood as a way of concealment from the coming wrath of the Shepherd. After all, misdirection and disinformation is what wolves do. They are also very good at concealment. It is else something wolves do.

Had the sheep remained obedient and not thrown the "pearls," the wolves would not be able to "turn and rend," because they wouldn't know to do so. Someday, irate sheep will undoubtedly call offending electronic huckster churchmen to a court of Law to explain their disobedience. While there, they may also be asked to explain why they can blandly stand and tell the flocks that, in their opinion, the Shepherd of the sheep is really a wolf.

Wolves Herding Sheep

Picture yourself standing on a tall mountain with a great valley spread before you - miles and miles wide, and miles and miles long. Picture it covered with sheep. Flocks here, flocks there. Some grazing on hills, others grazing in valleys.

Let's imagine that somehow the wolves have gotten into the sheepfold and have taken charge. Instead of having the Shepherd to herd the sheep, wolves are herding the sheep. On every hill top there is a sentinel looking down. Accompanying every flock grazing in some distant valley is an accompanying wolf. The wolves are shepherding the sheep. They are keeping track of what the sheep are doing. How fat they are. That's what they are supposed to do. Could it be any other way? One cannot imagine a business club, a social club, a church without at least one wolf in it to keep track of what the sheep are doing. It is not logical; it is not sensible. There is no other way to keep track of their flocks - their prey. If the wolves didn't know what the sheep were doing every minute, they wouldn't be doing their job.

The "Wolf-Howl"

The "wolf-howl" is distinctive wolf communication. It echoes over the valley from one mountainside to the other. Wolves communicate back and forth constantly, keeping everyone advised and informed of everything that the "establishment" wants known. It wasn't always this peaceful. At one time bloody wars surged through the valley as wolf-pack fought wolf-pack to obtain hunting areas in the valley. It was especially hard on the sheep who were enslaved and did most of the actual fighting. "Use an enemy to kill an enemy."

However, the result is now peaceful co-existence where wolves stay in their hunting areas and remain at peace with other wolves. Political boundaries have been established for this purpose and are now respected, sometimes. Peaceful co-existence makes it easier for wolves to supervise their flocks. One pack controls one flock, another pack controls another flock. Each flock of sheep is now the property of the wolfpack in whose hunting area it is in.

This idyllic scene is occasionally disturbed as wolves, "behind the scenes," bicker over hunting territory, status, or prey. Occasionally, the "wolf-howl" sounds forth stern commands for the wolves to behave themselves. Sometimes it announces to the entire valley, wolf and sheep alike, that a disobedient wolf has been found floating in the Atlantic Ocean. A media trade-wolf - too. The owner of 2,000 wolf-howls and worth billions of dollars. A BIG one. He's floating around - dead.

The wolf-howl next reports that he was "skimming." Skimming from his companies owned by international "wolf-banks" who hold mortgages. Wolves who do not obey the alpha-wolf - die. This wolf was found floating in the ocean. Another one was discovered hanging from a London bridge, and still another was blown up with a anti-tank missile while driving through a German town in his bullet proof car accompanied by a small army of guards. Wolf business is a mystery to most sheep, but this should be self evident - the biggest killer of wolves are other wolves.

Wolf scraps and fights are going on all the time that the sheep don't hear about. The wolf-howl doesn't report them. But because they don't hear of them, doesn't mean that they aren't happening. If a silly sheep expects wolves to tell the sheep that they are fighting to see who is going to eat the sheep - it isn't going to happen.

- There are four principle kinds of wolf-howl: The printed, audio, visual, and verbal.

Other than "general information" it is agreed that wolf-howl announcements of one pack may not disrupt another wolf-pack's management of their hunting area.

- Wolf-howl releases may reach every part of wolfdom, or they may be compartmentalized, depending on the expected reaction of the flocks.

The report of the "Georgia farmer revolt" was restricted to the local hunting-area until it was certain that the revolt would not spread. The 1985 national "Kansas farm rally" was largely unreported outside the immediate area. A major bank failed in the north-central states. The news was confined to that hunting area until it was certain that a run on wolf-banks was not developing. It is alleged that wolf-agents in the "Idaho Weaver Incident" shot the mother and child in cold blood to agitate the flock into attacking the establishment murderers. Concealed machine guns reportedly covered the crowds of sheep. The wolf-howl was to use the planned killing of sheep-protesters to gain votes for the upcoming election and to justify planned anti-sheep legislation. The sheep did not react as expected. They did not attack cold-blooded establishment murderers of the mother and child, and the wolf-howl was stuck with the establishment having committed a massacre. Wolf-howl damage control handled this development by blacking out the event, thereby preventing uncontrollable flock behavior in the rest of the country. For a considerable time virtually nothing was known of the killings outside the local area. This was an event far more important "news-wise" than the Rodney-Wolf case, which instantly went international and has remained top priority ever since.

Wolf-howl news items may be broadcast in a local sheepfold only. Or, they may be broadcast throughout an entire alpha-wolf federation. The wolf-howl is controlled absolutely and can be turned on and off like a water spigot, and made hot or cold as desired. The wolf-howl is remarkable. Its practitioners sit high in the wolf pecking order. Sheep-control would be lost instantly without it.

The sheep hear the wolf- howl and treat it as an "opinion," one among many that may or may not be accepted, depending on its merit.

Wolves receive the same news as being orders from the alpha-wolf, a matter in which they are given no option. Wolf-howl opinions are instantly the wolf's opinion. Wolves have ONE opinion - the alpha-wolf's opinion is their opinion. This is the individual wolf's way of playing safe - and staying alive. The more radical wolf-opinions reach their audience in special wolf- howl publications whose readership is restricted, but available.

- The "wolf-howl" serves three purposes: "control," "agitation," and "demonization."

Sheep try to live according to the dictates of their Shepherd. However, they can only act according to the information they have in their data-banks. If their data-banks contain only wolf-talk, this is all they can act on. All data that might be damaging to the wolves or their flock management is filtered out.

Wolves from the earliest days obtained media-control through their agents who used unlimited financial resources made available for that purpose. Thomas Jeffasheep complained about it, Old Hickory declared political war on them, and everyone who is abused complains.

Its operation is simple. The wolf-howl is a monopoly.<sup>1</sup> It promotes those who support wolf- policy and ignores those who do not. It's that simple. Sheep can only act on what they know. They only vote for sheep they know. George-Washasheep and Thomas-Jeffasheep, former sheep presidents, could not be elected dog-catcher under present conditions. No one would have ever heard of them because the wolf-howl would not have mentioned them.

Wolf "Demonization"

"Use an enemy to kill an enemy." This is one of the oldest maxims of the alpha-wolf. However, there is a major difficulty in getting <sup>1</sup> "Woe unto them that join house to house, that lay field to field, till there be no place, and they may be placed alone in the midst of the earth." Isaiah 5:8

sheep to slaughter sheep. The Shepherd forbids it.<sup>1</sup> The only time the Shepherd permits sheep to kill other sheep is when they commit a capital crime and are outlawed. Then, sheep are commanded to kill those sheep who are guilty of committing capital crimes.<sup>2</sup>

The wolf-howl's job simply is to convince the flocks that those sheep selected to be slaughtered have done things that are capital crimes. The wolves know that sheep will fight sheep only when they commit capital crimes. They simply lie and say that the selected victim is guilty. This charade is simpler than one would think and usually follows a pre-set plan.

THE SOUTHLAND: When the wolves decided to impose tribute-taxes on the independent flocks in the Southland and seize their rich pastures to sell to sheep immigrating from Europe<sup>3</sup> - the Southern sheep were "demonized" - they were made to appear as demons. The northern wolf-howl portrayed each and every southern-sheep, and the entire Southland collectively, as simply awful. They were said to have accumulated vast wealth through the blood of their abused black- wolf slaves whom they tortured and killed at their pleasure. They were said to commit incest and to lie. They were accused of robbery and causing economic depressions in the North. They were accused of being responsible for all the nation's ills. They were pictured as "demons" who walked as men - they were "demonized." This is standard wolf-howl procedure. All selected victims get this treatment.

Demonization alone is seldom enough to make sheep kill sheep. It's against their nature. Blood must first be spilled. Knowing this, wolves had their agent use the standard "choice-trick," the choice used to make a ram butt another ram and get a fight started. The targeted sheep must be given a choice it can't refuse.

Without permission from the sheep he was supposed to guide, the leader of the Northern sheep sent a fleet to invade a Southland port. The invaded sheep struck a blow to prevent the invasion. While no blood was shed, this blow - the "first shot" - sufficiently enraged the Northern sheep so that they could now justifiably "defend" themselves by invading, burning, looting, and raping the Southland. The wolf-howl repeatedly told the Northern-sheep that any punishment the outlaws in the south received was too good. That, for these outlaw-sheep - "The Law is done away." They could be starved, burned, raped and obliterated, and they were.

2 "Ye shall take no satisfaction (substitute) for the life of a murderer, which is guilty of death: but he shall surely be put to death." Num 35:31, "If a man find a betrothed damsel ... and the man force her ... the man only ... shall die." Deut 22:25, "If a man be found stealing any of his brethren of Israel, and maketh merchandise of him, or selleth him: then that thief shall die." Deut 24:7 etc.

The northern sheep acted on the information given by the wolf-howl. They knew nothing else. But the information was a lie.<sup>1</sup> Because of this lie 600,000 men died and almost the same number of civilians died from privation. "Use an enemy to fight an enemy." The wolf-howl reports that even today some Southland sheep still blame the sheep who invaded her. The wolf-howl constantly stokes the fire. That's what they are supposed to do.

SOUTH AFRICA: The wolf-attack on the South African sheep followed almost exactly the technique used in the Southland success. The prey was the newly discovered South African gold mines. The South African sheep were first outlawed and demonized with the same charges used on the sheep in the Southland. Next, South African sheep were provoked to make them strike the first blow. An invading column of armed civilians was sent into South Africa. They were captured. If quantities of blood had been shed, it may have provided the excuse needed, but the lack of blood caused the invasion to be a failure. Sheep are seldom upset over events in which no one is hurt.

Next, invading British troops were stationed near the borders of the gold-rich regions and troop ships containing thousands more were expected to arrive momentarily. The Boers now had a "Charleston Harbor Choice." They could wait until a powerful fleet brought reinforcements to a powerful invading army, or they could strike while there was a chance of success. They struck, and the Boers who had been demonized by the wolf-howl were hunted down one by one and shot, burned, raped, looted, or died wholesale in British concentration camps. "Use an enemy to fight an enemy." The wolves got the gold-mines. The sheep-invaders got "taps" played over their military cemeteries. And ravaged South African sheep still nurse their wounds and still blame the British sheep who invaded them.

GERMANY: The wolf-attack on Germany was a copy of the other two. The immediate objective was the vast land holdings of the state and princes, formerly belonging to the Kaiser and before that - the church. Germany and her sheep were first demonized and economic sanctions were placed against her. This had no result. Next, Polish-wolves were incited to massacre large populations of German-sheep living in Polish occupied Germany. This caused Germany to invade Poland, which gave wolf-led Britain and France the excuse needed to declare war on her.

To break the stalemate that had resulted from the reluctance of sheep to fight sheep in Europe - the wolf ruled U.S. engaged in a two year period of provocations against both Germany and Japan, culminating in the threat against Japan to cut off oil and raw-materials. Japan was given the same "trick-choice." She could starve - or fight. She chose to fight and struck the first blow. Germany was drawn into the war because of existing treaties, as it was planned that she would be.

It works every time. The same things happened to Germany as happened to the Southland and South Africa. Japan was largely spared because wolves are always easier on wolves than on sheep. German sheep still nurse their wounds and blame the British and American sheep who invaded her. No one blames the wolf-howl. How can they? Opposing opinions are not permitted in wolf occupied sheepfolds. The sheep may think what they will - but only the opinions of the wolf will be heard in the land.

Wolf-Communism

The magic of "Communism" is that it promises to do away with monopolies. Sheep have the law in their hearts - they respond when they hear someone say that they will do away with monopolies. Sheep know that the Shepherd has forbidden monopoly.<sup>1</sup> They know that the land is to be divided and never ever sold,<sup>1</sup> and that every sheep has been designated a king and a priest to administer the Shepherd's laws on the Shepherd's land, land that is to the sheep's land-grant forever.

---

1 "Woe unto them that join house to house, that lay field to field, till there be no place, and they may be placed alone in the midst of the earth." Isaiah 5:8

Sheep-monopolies are unjust and are forbidden. They exist, are powerful, and are winked at by corrupt clerical-sheep who receive bribes from the monopolies. The monopolies exempt them from paying taxes that others pay. Bribe in hand, they see no evil.

The only ones who offer help are wolves. The wolves tell the sheep that if they will help the wolf-pack seize the sheep-monopolies, the wolves will divide with them so that everyone can have a piece and then everyone will be happy. Sheep with nothing to lose and something to gain, go along. It sounds good, it is certainly better than what they have. So, abused and forsaken sheep, shunned by the bribed clerical-sheep, join the wolves to bring about the Shepherd's "justice" on earth. They seize the sheep-monopolies.

In this manner the wolf-pack has once again deceived the sheep and "used an enemy to kill an enemy." The coveted sheep-monopoly has been delivered to the wolves to be divided. The sheep stand expectantly waiting for their share while the wolves feed. The wolves tell the sheep that "soon" they will divide the prey, but "soon" never comes. This is what the Russian Revolution was all about. The only time the sheep will get a piece of the monopoly is when there is nothing left but bones to feed on. The wolves may then leave the ravaged sheepfold to hunt prey elsewhere, perhaps overseas.

The wolf-pack is ruled by an alpha-wolf. The alpha-wolf is a king who will kill rivals. All that the wolf-pack has is his. This is the natural state of the wolf. His offer to divide is a misleading to sheep, but understood by other wolves. The most he will ever do is give a franchise to those subjects who are loyal and faithful. The offer by a wolf-king to divide what he has with the sheep is a carrot on a stick which the wolf-howl calls "communism." Deluded sheep really believe that the wolf-king will actually divide what he rules. Believing this dream, they serve the wolves as wage-slaves. Those who object and rebel find a resting place in a mass grave.

Wolves eat sheep - that's what they do. They've been doing it a long time.

Operation Trojan Horse

"Wolfy-Sheep Religion"

When the wolves crashed into Eastern European sheepfolds they captured much prey, including the capture of the establishment-church. This church owned millions of acres it had ripped-off from the sheep. Churchmen managed this property. Both church and its churchmen managers were incorporated into a department of the wolf-government. A wolf-director was appointed who selected and promoted churchmen-sheep within the church organization. One of those promoted is now head of the largest religious organization in the world. He was appointed and promoted because he could find no fault with the wolves. He still can't. That's why he was appointed and promoted. Sheep listen to his talks about "love" and agree that wolves aren't so bad after all.<sup>1</sup>

Having their own sheep-church department in eastern Europe was a new experience for wolves. It was nice running the whole show, having churchmen-sheep on their payroll. "Separation of Church and State" became "separation of the Shepherd from the sheep." It got the Shepherd off the wolves' backs and having the churchmen in their pay kept him off.

In the West the wolves had to approach the problem of Word suppression more diplomatically. The churchmen couldn't be ordered, they had to be "persuaded." The monetary side of the persuasion was quickly attended to by giving agreeable ecclesiastics tax exemption. Those who rebel, like Bob Sheep University, are taxed. Few churchmen see evil in the land. They are paid not to. That leaves tricky ecclestical arguments that must be answered.

1 "If ye love me obey my commandments." John 14:15

The Word of the Shepherd stands on two legs - "grace" and "law." A sheep has the Shepherd's grace or he doesn't. Picture a flock of sheep grazing peacefully in a pasture. The Shepherd is watching over them. Some of the sheep appear peaceful, but they really aren't. They behave only because they are afraid of being punished if they are caught misbehaving. When they think the Shepherd is absent these willful sheep do as they please. There are the other sheep who continue obedient to the wishes of the Shepherd whether watched or not. These sheep are his special joy. He doesn't have to watch them because they try to anticipate what the Shepherd wants. He spoke of them when he said "I am in you and you in me." They are the ones honored with the Shepherd's "grace."

This "grace" is a stench in the nostrils of wolves. To suppress and replace the Word with something more friendly, they created a new religion and selected certain janissary-churchmen to propagate it. It is a hybrid religion called "wolfy-sheepism." "Wolfy-sheepism" is nothing but wolf-policy wrapped in sheep church-jargon. Its basic tenants are (1) "luv" - the huggy-huggy, kissy-kissy kind, (2) the law is done away, and (3) everyone who says that he believes in god and repeats certain magic words is saved by god's grace.

In this last ritual the person being converted to wolfy- sheepism is told to ask the "Lord" to come into his heart. He literally believes that someone with blond hair and a beard has somehow stepped into his heart. Not one in a thousand is told that God is the Word.<sup>1</sup> Not one in ten thousand knows that "being born again" requires one to love God by OBEYING God's Laws, statutes and judgments which comprise the Word.<sup>2</sup> The whole thing is rendered gibberish when the new convert is told that the law is done away. If the Lord is not the Word, then he must be a picture book god. If the convert has accepted a picture book god, it is an idol. Idols are forbidden by the second command of the Word. This is exactly what the wolves want - sheep who violate the Word do not judge wolves harshly.

To promote this new wolfy-sheep religion as widely as possible, it is given almost exclusive publicity in the wolf- howl. From the extensive coverage it receives, many have come to believe that wolfy-sheepism is THE religion of the sheep.

1 "In the beginning was the WORD, and the word was with God, and the WORD was God." John 1:1, and "The WORD was made flesh, and dwelt among us." John 1:14.

2 "If ye love me obey my commandments." John 14:15

Wolfy-sheep church members are easy to identify because most actually boast that they are "wolfy-sheep." This admission is confirmed by attending one of their services in which the Word, the Laws, statutes, and judgments, is absent. Wolves, who have been created "honorary-sheep" may be seen sprinkled throughout the flock keeping them under observation. This in spite of the Shepherd's prohibition.<sup>1</sup> Sheep under the sway of the wolfy-sheep doctrine are taught not to sweat the Shepherd because his law is done away and therefore one cannot break something that doesn't exist. His law cannot be broken because there is no law to break! Since it is impossible to break a non-existent law, one can do with impunity what used to be called "sin."

A remark suggesting that what they are doing is unlawful causes them to complain, "Thou deprivest us of the sweetness of life, which consists in acting according to our own wills." Antiquities 4:6:10.

The wolf-howl is known to be a source of great riches. When the wolves advertised for willful churchmen to teach the flocks this "wolfy-sheep" religion and informed them that their pay would be a chance to reap the wolf-howl's wealth, they were overwhelmed with applications. Churchmen fell over themselves lining up to work for the wolves. They didn't appear be the least embarrassed to stand before the flocks and tell them that the sheep's God is a wolf, and that the sheep chosen by God are also wolves, and that they - the sheep - instead of being sheep are really wolves.

This doesn't make sense when ones thinks about it, so listeners were quickly diverted with other things - Hollywood style soloists, kids singing, quartets singing, choirs singing, bands playing, healing, baptizing, and plates passed to buy food for the starving Eskimos at the North Pole. It was all there - things were happening. Still, if something is said enough times - the sheep will eventually hear - and what they hear is: "The sheep's God is a wolf and the sheep chosen by God are also wolves."

The continued use of the wolf-howl required that this "oath of allegiance" be repeated again and again, usually with every broadcast. It generally takes about three years for the average sheep to realize that he is being told that God is a wolf. When at last this sinks in - he quits. This accounts for the tremendous turnover in wolfy-sheep churches promoted by the wolf- howl.<sup>1</sup> There is a definite tendency for churchmen teaching this new religion to have a "past," a past very much in conflict with the Word. It has been suggested that the past is the reason they were selected - that such people are more easily managed. A more simple explanation is that a sheep who would freely teach anti- Shepherd doctrine will do so because he has developed a lifetime habit of violating the Laws, statutes, and judgments which is the Word. Whoremongers, liars, adulterers, and sodomites appear to comprise a very large element of this crowds' leadership. It would stand to reason that such types would feel that a new master which allows them to do as they like is a better master.

Things were much different when I was a boy. My mother made me go to Summer Bible School at First Baptist and Rivermont Presbyterian Churches. No sooner had I plowed through one summer Bible-school than I'd have to go to the other - all summer long! Everybody went. Long lists of Bible verses and Bible laws had to be memorized. A big board was set up in the hall listing each child's name. Gold and silver stars were awarded for verses memorized to the teacher's satisfaction.

The first verse that everyone learned was - "In the beginning was the word and the word was with God and the word was God" and "The word was made flesh and dwelt among us. Those were the very first memory verses in the front of the memory book. We were taught that things were either approved by the Word, or they weren't. We were taught that "Sin is the transgression of the law." John 3:4, and it was everyone's job to fight sin.

My Uncle Thompson would punch your lights out for cursing God and abusing his Laws, and he didn't much care who you were. I remember the time he had some hard drinking fellow holed-up under a car because he wouldn't go hear an evangelist preach against drunkenness, which was a violation of the law. People took God seriously. Uncle Thompson did. Perhaps he came down a bit hard, but people who heard about the incident approved. It was better to have Uncle Thompson teach the fellow a lesson than have the poor fellow go on to worse things. The kids of yesterday knew more Bible, hands down, than most establishment preachers know today, and they believed what they knew. This created the blind faith that the wolves found so disconcerting. They also knew that "the Word was given to Israel and to them only."<sup>1</sup> They also knew that Israel had made a personal covenant with God to obey his Laws, statutes, and judgments.

1 It took the author of this book eighteen long years to discover what many others discovered in an instant.

Besides the group covenant, each and every individual made a covenant with God. Every child went to the front of his respective church and pledged before God and everybody sitting there to obey God's laws, statutes, and judgments - the Laws that God had given to Israel only. To do this they had to be Israelites. They knew that - the scripture said so. They knew the scripture - they knew what they were doing. To them the Bible was a history book of their family. Isaac was their grandfather 'way back. They bore Isaacs' name. The sheep looked to the Bible stories as true history examples that must be followed, and they worked at obeying his laws.

Wolves Exploit Controversy

This is what the SHEEP did. There are two other claimants who are forever maintaining that they too are "Israel." The claimant heard from most often is:

THE ESTABLISHMENT-CHURCH - both Protestant and Catholic claim to be Israel because they too wish to "rule as God."<sup>2</sup> If the "Word that was God" was given to the "Church" - then the Church becomes God's representative on earth - "Israel." Claiming this authority, it may dictate which laws of the Word are to be obeyed and which laws are to be thrown away. The "church" has always been outspoken in condemnation of "unbelievers." Those who refuse to believe that the hard-living ecclesiastics with their equally hard-living followers are "Israel," "God's representatives on earth," consequently don't believe that the priests' constant and flagrant transgression of the scriptures are God's will. To stop the sheep from learning which of God's laws were being violated, the church in earlier days simply forbade the reading of the Bible.

2 Because of the claim to be Israel: "He rules as God", the leader of the Catholic denomination is called "God on earth" by many of his followers. His word is infallible and may not be questioned. Many Protestant priests covet this same clout over their flocks. The only way they can get the authorization is to be "Israel."

The sins of the established-church are many. The church that proclaims itself to be "Israel" does not condemn the sin of "monopoly," "homosexuality," or "usury." It approves its own vast storerooms of monopolies and wealth which includes actual ownership of usury-banks that prey on the sheep. Its silence has approved the active participation of church members in both the slavery and opium trade. Its silence and passiveness encourage abortion and pornography. It actively promotes mixing true Israelites with the peoples of the world. Wolves and "honorary- sheep" stroll in and out of its doors at will. Its silence gives assent to countless wolf-instigated civil wars within Israel and the resulting slaying of tens of millions of Israelites - the true Israel that God selected to "rule as God."<sup>1</sup>

This religious Trojan-horse, the monopoly ruled by monopolies, claims the title "Israel" - "To rule as God." As claimant to the title, it claims that it is custodian of the "Word that was God." As custodian of the "Word that was God," it claims the final authority of right and wrong and claims the power to forgive the sins from which it profits. The establishment church continues to make its claims. It has burned sheep to keep them from reading the Word. It has twisted, concealed, and evaded. But there is one thing it cannot conceal. It is the partially eaten bodies of sheep lying in the streets and in shallow graves in sheepfolds all over the world. Wolves eat sheep, that's what they do,<sup>2</sup> and the establishment church helps them do it.

THE JEWS are the last claimants to the title "Israel" - "To rule as God." As "Israel"<sup>3</sup> theirs is also a public claim that they are custodians of the "Word that was God." Being custodians of the "Word that was God," they become God's final spokesmen of right and wrong, and claimant to the promises made to Israel. As God's spokesmen they declare what the law requires and claim immunity from criticism.

One of the three claimants listed above - (1) the people who believe that they are Israel, (2) the Church, or (3) the Jews - must be the true Israel of scripture and therefore justified to claim the promises of wealth, health, peace, and supremacy that were made to Israel by God. God gave "True Israel" the promises and the authority.

Now, WHO among the claimants is the true Israel? It's important to know.

Finding A "GEM" In G-I-M

This knowledge as to the identity of Israel is a "gem." A jewel. Gem is spelled G-I-M. Gem.

"G" - God, "I" - Israel, and "M" - man. "The 3-proofs of Israel." This is a real "gem." When someone asks you for the reason for your certainty, say - I've got a "gem." Spell gem - G-I-M! There's no excuse for not having the answer on the tip of your tongue.

Tell what it means:

The "3-Proofs"

The "3-proofs" of Israel are:

(1) God's name - CHRISTIANS - "They shall put my name upon the children of Israel." Num 6:27 (2) Isaac's name, SONS OF ISAAC - ISAACSONS - SAXONS, "In Isaac shall thy name be called." Romans 9:7, and (3) Adamic descent. "Man" in Strong's Concordance is the Hebrew word - "Adam." "Adam" means to "blush red." "Show blood in the face." Genuine Israelites can produce all three proofs. "CHRISTIAN"- "SAXON"- "MAN."

Does the church bear God's name? Yes. Does the church bear Isaac's name? No. Is the church of Adamic descent? No.

Second, the Jews claim to be Israel but don't bear God's name - "Christian." Neither do they bear Isaac's name - "Isaacson," "Saxon," and last, most are not of "adamic descent" (Heb: Adam - blush red).<sup>1</sup> Three strikes.

Those who bear the 3-proofs of Israel - are Israel: "To rule as God." If YOU bear Gods name - Christian; If YOU bear Isaac's name - Saxon; if YOU are a man (adamic descent) - blush red: You are Israel. G- I-M "gem." Don't forget it.<sup>2</sup>

The Wolf's Wage-Slave

Often in the mornings I meet briefly to have coffee with busy people on the way to work. There is a corporation manager, an outspoken secretary, a media person, two college professors, two high school teachers, a scientist, a highly paid detail man, two factory workers, two retired from corporate management, and a preacher. They all have two things in common: they have NO OPINION on things the media brands as controversial, and they all receive salaries (wages). They are "wage-slaves."

Notice how yellow-wolves will wash dishes or scrub floors and then go through any privation to own their own business? The business may be small, it may not make much money - but it is preferable to receiving a larger salary elsewhere. Notice how trade-wolves in wolf-city will drive a taxi, carry newspapers, do almost anything rather be a "wage-slave" of another wolf?

To a wolf, a "wage-slave" is precisely that - a "wage" - "slave." The person receiving the wage belongs to the one giving the wage. Any time the slave offends the master in any way, the master can stop payment of the "wage" and the "slave" will starve. He may lose his house, his car, his furniture, his children may suffer horribly, or his wife may have to prostitute herself to the master. The slave always wonders if he has "offended." He always wonders if his job is secure. He always wonders if he will be laid off. He always wonders if he will be "fired" when he gets old, and then starve. He can never chance saying anything that may "offend" his master, or say anything that may be reported back to his master.

1 If it is argued that the word "Israel" encompasses both "God" and "Isaac," it still does not satisfy the "man" (Heb: to blush red) requirement, or the prohibition of accepting mixedbreeds into the nation of Israel (Deut 23:2). The Jews boast that they are a very mixed race.

2 Most of the books in the Bible and most of the instructions from God to Israel are addressed to "son of man" - son of "he who blushes red." Jesus, the "Word made flesh," the personification of the Laws, statutes and judgments, called himself "son of man" - son of he who blushes red. "Saxon-Christian-men," are like their creator, a "son of man."

This is the life of a "wage-slave." The fear and the uncertainty is part of the slave's life. It is an existence worse than that of the black-wolf slave a century and a half ago. At least the black-wolf's housing, food, clothing, and minimum standards of treatment were things guaranteed by sheep-law. This included guaranteed retirement when too old to work. Masters who offended the code were punished harshly. Added to this, common sense says that the masters of yesteryear took care of their slaves at least as well as their livestock. Wouldn't you? How much of a dog's life does your dog live?

Yes, you would take care of your slaves; you are a sheep. Wolves don't. The life of a wolf's wage-slave is a precarious existence. Wolves are predators. They take, they gather, they pull down, they devour. That's what they do. If they cannot do it to a sheep, they will do it to a wolf. Wolves will do almost anything rather than become another wolf's wage-slave. Black-wolves hate becoming wage-slaves of black-wolves. Brown and yellow wolves dislike becoming the wage-slave of anyone - sheep or wolf. It immediately puts them far down on the pecking order. To them, the difference between a highly paid plant manager and a floor sweeper in the same plant is only that of degree. Both are wage-slaves.

Sheep-slavery is different from wolf-slavery. It is a seven-year indenture. The owner of the indenture-contract was required to provide shelter, food, clothing, and needed extras. At the end of the indenture the sheep-slave must be able to take his place among the rest of the sheep as a king and priest.<sup>1</sup> This meant that he was to be trained and able to make a living at a trade and be provided with the tools of that trade, or be taught the knowledge of farming and be provided with land to farm, which included the implements with which to farm. Since it was in the Word of God, it was enforced by the written statutes of the state.

My grandfather understood the wolf-monopoly slavery. Kresge had a 5¢-10¢ store in Culpeper. It undersold all the other small merchants. But there were few customers in the store. Most seen shopping there were looking for items not carried elsewhere. Granddaddy told me that it was better to pay more somewhere else than to deal with an out-of-town store. He meant - wolf-monopoly. The Kresge sales people looked work-worn and haggard.

1 "Jesus Christ ... hath made us kings and priests." Rev 1:5,6

Granddaddy said that they were paid almost nothing and could be fired on a moment's notice.

Granddaddy owned a furniture store. The man who worked there was given the option to take it over. He also owned an old hotel, which he turned into a restaurant. The man who rented it bought it. He also built houses. His foreman in time took over and went out on his own. He also opened an appliance store. The manager took over. My grandfather was a great tree under whose branches many other trees took root. He was an obedient sheep. His word was his bond. His blessing blessed many, and his curse withered. On his deathbed his physicians proscribed a blood-transfusion. The town drunk was the only one who had his blood-type. He refused, saying that he was not going to take the tainted blood of the town-drunk. He had lived his life taking care of his body and he wasn't going to change just because he was dying.

To him the Word was sufficient. He absolutely refused to darken the door of an establishment-church and refused to have his body placed in one for his funeral.<sup>1</sup>

Many years later I worked as a management trainee at the southside Philip Morris cigarette factory in Richmond. I got to know the workers. One of them, a "fixer," was also the union representative. He told me what it was like in "the depression." People without jobs were starving. The New York trade-wolf owners, or their managers, would walk down the rows of machines and point out this or that female machine operator. She had to have sex with him or lose her job and her children would starve. That's what a "wage-slave" is. It depends on how desperate conditions get.<sup>2</sup>

1 Richard Thomas Kelly was the son of Granville Payne Kelly of Kelly's Ford. Granville Payne Kelly went to prison rather than give oath of allegiance to the federal government. He had given his oath to his own country - and he couldn't withdraw his promise. "The acorn does not fall far from the tree."

2 Think Fast America by Lambert Schuyler, is quoted in Vigilantes, page 392. Schuyler wanted to convert company debt into common stock. The conversion rate was to be determined by dividing the debt by the common stock price based on its market price the day the debt was initially issued. This new stock plus the other stock was to be held in escrow to prevent hanky-panky. The workers could then buy the stock to their percent of the total work force. The sheep would then own his business. No worker-owner would be allowed to monopolize ownership. "Wage-slave" prostitution to feed a family would no long be necessary in corporate America.

The Janissary

The wolf's greatest problem is other wolves. In the days of the Ottoman Empire, the Turkish Sultan ruled Arabs, Seljuk Turks, Ottoman Turks, Khazar Turks, Kurds, and varied other wolf-packs going under one name or another. Each had his own problems and each had problems with the other. When ordered to mobilize to go to war, he would find them fighting among themselves. He would have to delay until he got the dispute worked out before he could start a campaign, then he would have to wait again when another fight broke out. At all times some of his followers were off invading a neighbor, or squabbling about this or that.

Wolves are great on the hunt. But, getting them to the hunt and getting the hunt started wrecked the dreams of many an alpha-wolf. The solution was found - found in the least expected place - the sheep.

Sheep have many qualifications necessary to be "super-wolves." Without a sheepfold, and without their Shepherd to teach them, they become what they are taught. Naturally trusting, single-minded, and dedicated, and with a substitute wolf-shepherd to tell them "wolf-right" from "wolf-wrong," and trained to war, their newly acquired "wolf- heart" causes them to become as vicious as any biological-wolf. Unlike wolves, they will fight to the last drop of their sheep's-blood. This is the sort of building material an alpha-wolf craves. An elite storm- troop, single minded, loyal to him alone. Of course, they must be kept loyal.

The sultan recruited a force made up of indoctrinated-sheep. He sent emissaries to take young sheep by force. He bought others from child-stealers and kidnapers. He paid top dollar and took good care of his young "guests." They were slaves, but were never called "slaves." Even slaves object to being called slaves. They were called "Janissaries," but, since he paid them a "salary" - they were slaves.

As mentioned earlier, rather than be the slave of another wolf, a wolf will drive a camel or a taxi, or almost anything rather than take a salary. "Salary-takers" are at the bottom of the pack's pecking order. To a wolf - the difference between being a plant manager and a floor sweeper is a question of degree. The salary makes both salary-slaves. Both are dependent on their salary- payer.

A wolf, working for himself, at least keeps his pretensions and can dream of one day rising on the ladder to become an alpha-wolf himself. The salary is the wolf's slave-chain.<sup>1</sup>

The sultan fed his young guests well, he clothed them in the finest apparel, and had them converted to Islam. They were then trained to be warriors - janissaries - the alpha-wolf's salaried representatives.

The "janissary," a sheep-slave with a wolf heart! The "leaven of the pharisees." They were the most fanatical group of warriors Islam has ever known. They had the discipline that came with 1,000 generations of selective breeding guaranteeing sheep- like obedience, and they had placed in their hearts the "jihad," the "holy-war" of the wolves.

This force numbered 20,000 to 40,000. These disciplined, well trained warriors formed the spear-point of the Ottoman invasions of Europe, and they were almost invincible. The first wild-eyed sword-swinging heathen trying to separate the Christian's head from his shoulders often had blond hair and blue eyes. His hate-filled eyes and heart were filled with wolf-lore. The wolves honored them - they were elite. Most wolves feared them, but looked down on them at the same time, because they were "wage-slaves."

In time, conditions changed. The janissaries were allowed to keep what they captured from the sultan's enemies, and in this way they amassed wealth, possessions, estates, slaves, and women. But, they were prohibited from marrying or keeping children bred by their slaves. In the wolf-world power comes from riches. "Great" wealth can only be inherited. Seldom can enough wealth be accumulated in a single generation to cause one to become a rival to the alpha-wolf.<sup>2</sup> On the death of the janissary, his estate went to the janissary organization, and the organization became strong and powerful.

The janissary not only faithfully fought Islam's wars, but their hereditary make-up made them remarkably good governors and administrators. In time they also provided the police, and relatively honest tax-collectors - in-as-far as honest tax- collectors can be found in a wolf society. In peace time they drew a salary from the sultan. In war time they gathered the loot from the enemies of their leader the Sultan. They were Islam's civil service and first line of defense.

1 Government jobs are protected by civil-service. Media and certain teaching jobs are tan-wolf monopolies and are considered permissible alpha-type positions. These are the major exceptions. Many superior wolf teachers and writers receive large grants from trusts which raises them to a status that will not be hurt by taking these kinds of jobs.

2 Wolves impose estate taxes as soon as they take over a government. A heavy estate-tax prevents subservient wolves, or sheep, from becoming rivals.

In time, these Janissaries took complete control. They ruled the Sultan and appointed his successor. They stopped the humiliating salary "slave-wage" and went into business themselves or took "tribute" (their protection money) from the wolves just as other wolves do. Being the most powerful with the powerful janissary organization to back them, they took most of the tribute. Now they were no longer "wage- slaves."<sup>1</sup> It had become socially acceptable to join, and every wolf in Islam tried to enlist his children in the organization, drastically changing its composition in its latter days.<sup>2</sup>

Some believe that clips showing blond-haired figures mixed in among the packs of dark-skinned wolves in mid-east newsreels may account for some of yesterday's "missing sheep" - now trained to be janissaries.<sup>3</sup>

The American Red-Wolf

Red-wolves, living around the Great Lakes captured the frontier children of the sheep, raised them as red-wolves, and gave them wolf-hearts. They became chiefs and medicine men. They were worse in their treatment of captured sheep than the red-wolves were. Having the natural discipline that came from their breeding - they single-mindedly sought to exterminate the white sheep. Their captors turned them to war and they obeyed with their entire heart. Their vision became the destruction of the flock.

The names Simon Girty and Joseph Brandt come to mind. The smiling blond-haired stranger knocking at the stockade gate, begging shelter for the night - the one who held the door open for the

1 The movie "The Godfather" was true to life in this respect. The calm steadying force behind the wolf-organization was the Irishman who was taken in and raised as a son. A wolf-heart was instilled in him and his highest ideal was to win acceptance from the rest of the pack.

2 In Egypt, the janissaries were called "mamelukes." They were the power within the wolf pack and furnished 56 consecutive sultans. These fierce warriors decimated the Crusaders and chewed up the vaunted invading armies of the Mongols.

3 In answer to the inevitable question, "What happened to yesterday's janissaries?;" One morning a rising alpha wolf ordered the wolf packs to kill the janissaries, kill them all, and the wolves did.

wolf pack to rush in was the trusted one who then gleefully joined the massacre.

The ravaged Sheep became careful. Many was the time Lew Wetzel, "Deathwind" himself, was bound hand and foot after entering a fort and released only when someone vouched for him. The janissary is the most feared of all foes because one cannot tell him by sight. His skin and smell are sheep, but his heart is wolf.<sup>1</sup>

Operation Trojan-Horse - Political

Wolves tend flocks of sheep with as much care as farmers tend cattle. They know all about them. It's their job.

To prevent the unexpected, wolves station lookouts wherever sheep gather. Where the sheep appear agitated, or belligerent, lookouts are doubled and special care is taken.

This care consists of inserting janissaries among the dissident sheep to take leadership if possible, and if that is not possible, to plant "disinformation."

Rhodesia, surrounded by wolves, fought to victory. In the hour of victory their leader, Iaan Sheep, without consulting the flock, negotiated to turn the entire sheepfold over to the wolves: a magnificent coup resulting from prior careful and systematic wolf-planning. The elected ram has all the hall-marks of a janissary with a wolf-heart.

South Africa, the most powerful nation in Africa, has been brought to her knees by a janissary who was given the leadership of the sheep-fold because of favorable mention given him in the South African "wolf-howl."

In the U.S. the dissident sheep were given a leader. George Janissary. The George Janissary's third-party organization could have won the presidency. This would have given the sheep a grass-roots organization - something the wolves definitely do not want the sheep to have. So, George was shot and his organization fell apart. Later, George admitted to being a liberal all along.

The conservative sheep of America's right wing are once again restless. To take charge and lead them in circles, the wolves have given them a distinguished janissary to be their leader, one who is being discretely promoted by the wolf-howl. The "sheep- leader" has a wolf-heart. He lies. He violates the Shepherds' laws.

Rams who wish to take charge of the sheep in the future will have to pass through the filter of the Shepherd's Law if they expect be accepted by the sheep. If they pass through the filter, they won't be janissaries.

Wolves Suppress Sheep Rebellion

Wolves accumulate, take, steal, and monopolize. It's their nature. The Shepherd says that the land is to be divided among his sheep and never sold.<sup>1</sup> Sheep law says that the land is never to be taxed, because missing a tax payment will cause the land to default to another.<sup>2</sup>

Suppose wolves come to take a sheep's property and the sheep won't relinquish it, protesting that "the Shepherd" gave it to him and said that it is never to be sold. If he were allowed to get away with this, the rest of the flock might also defy wolf- authority and refuse to relinquish their land when foreclosed. This would create a problem. A sheep presenting a similar problem was a farmer named Kirk - Arthur Kirk.

Such rebellion must be rapidly crushed as an example to others. A janissary strike-force composed of salary-slaves was sent to punish him.<sup>3</sup> Wolves know that sheep will tolerate abuse from other sheep that they will not tolerate from wolves.

They went to Arthur Kirk's farmhouse door and called him out. They called him names to incite him. When he came to the door - brrrrrup, bang! bang! bang! It was all over. Kirk, the sheep who showed defiance, was rapidly taken down. The point was made; Sheep who defy the wolf or his representatives, or who may become a rallying point, die. That's the way it is. The wolf-howl reported that another radical farm protester was shot by "peace officers" who were simply enforcing "the law of the land."

1 "The land shall be divided." Num 26:53-55, "The land shall not be sold." Lev 25:13- 28

2 "Of whom do the kings of the earth take custom or tribute? of their own children, or of strangers? Peter saith unto him, Of strangers. ... Then are the children free." Math 17:25-26.

3 This sort of force is far different from yesterday's neighborhood "posse" composed of kings and priests who owned their own land.

Wolf Tribute - Taxes

I pay my taxes. I overpay my taxes. I encourage all others to pay their taxes. I have an accountant who tells me how much taxes I have to pay and I add extra to them. I pay under protest - but I pay.

Some people use the legal system to lawfully avoid paying taxes. More power to them. However, I don't have the time or the expertise to do this. There is a very large tax-protest movement in America. At the root of the tax-protest movement is the knowledge that sheep cannot own land that is taxed. A single missed tax payment reveals who owns the land. The sheep know that the scriptures say that "the children are free" from taxes. So they go to the limit to gain exceptions so that they will not have to pay the present income tax. This infuriates the wolf who treats legitimate tax avoidance as unwillingness to pay tribute and is treason to themselves.

One such person was Gordon Kahl. He was ambushed by Federal janissaries and killed. A bullet was fired into the back of his head. This type of death is a wolf trademark - the bullet in the back of the head. It leaves no doubt that the offender was executed by "the pack" for crimes against the pack. In China, the conquering reds killed millions of their opponents, each with a bullet in back of the head. In the USSR, millions were shot, a bullet in back of the head. In Poland, the reds killed the Polish officer corps - each with a bullet in the back of the head.

Kahl's death was supposed to have been hushed up. But, in spite of wolf-howl disinformation, the message went out among the "kings and priests" that this killing was wrong. Kahl was really trying to obey the Law with his tax avoidance.<sup>1</sup> The wolves say that Kahl was breaking the law by not paying these taxes, which thereby made him an outlaw. But the message among the flocks is, "Hey, this sheep was killed for obeying God's law!" This is not what the wolves want to hear. It is not what they want the sheep to be told.

Another case at present is that of a "false witness." Janissaries claim that a sheep had in his possession a forbidden weapon. The sheep said his fingerprints were fraudulently planted on the weapon. If true, that is called a "false witness" which sheep-law calls unlawful. The accused sheep says that a wolf-janissary lied about the whole thing and that he is not going to play their game and go to jail for 5 to 10 years for something he didn't do. He then went to the top of a distant mountain where wolves couldn't get him.<sup>1</sup>

1 "Of whom do the kings of the earth take custom or tribute? Of their own children, or of strangers? Peter saith unto him, Of strangers." (Gr: allotrios - foreign, not akin.) ... Then are the children free." Math 17:25-26.

Wolves cannot allow a sheep to wander off and form his own country. A Robin Hood in his Sherwood Forest is the last thing the wolves need. So, they sent janissaries to do a Kahl job, a Kirk job - on him. But, instead, the janissaries managed to do something that is against all sheep rules - something sheep consider "unfair." They killed a child. A young kid. "Women and children first" is as old as sheep-history. They are evacuated first from sinking ships, even when rams go down. Sheep always look after their women and children. Sheep are that way. Wolves aren't. Wolves are the first in the life-boats. Even the wolf- howl admits it. Remember the Greek passenger ship that went down and the passengers accused the crew of getting in the lifeboats first and leaving them on the ship to drown? That's the nature of wolves. The Titanic went down and those saved were women and children. The male passengers and the crew went down with the ship. It is the difference between a sheep- ship and a wolf-ship.

The Weaver Massacre on the mountain at Ruby Creek got out of hand. The janissaries ambushed a sheep and killed one of his kids. The wolf-howl blacked it out outside the packs hunting area. It was only later that the sheep in other hunting areas heard about it. The Northwest wolf-pack hunting area gave the sheep a wolf- version of the story, but to this very day many other parts of the nation know nothing about it. The wolves know how to manage the sheep with their wolf-howl. They've had enough practice.

They knew what would happen in the great valley if the sheep caught the smell of wolves making a kill. A sheep stampede could result! It has happened before. The German sheep caught the smell of blood as the wolves killed Russian sheep and they stampeded. It took the combined efforts of all the wolf-packs in the world to get them under control again. Wolves already have their problems with other wolves, they don't need the flock stampeding off somewhere. The next stampede could take a hundred years to bring under control. Perhaps never.

<sup>1</sup> "If a false witness rise up ... Then shall ye to unto him, as he had thought to have done unto his brother." Deu 19:16-17. If this was a false witness - the janissary offender must receive the five to 10 year sentence meant for him. A "lie" or "stress" detector test should help determine the truth of the matter. Practically, such tests were "outlawed" by the wolves because they implicated the wolves for doing what wolves do.

The wolves made their Ruby Creek kill, and then stood still and waited to see what the sheep were going to do. Most sheep knew nothing about it, so they did nothing. A few were restless. As soon as these settle down and go back to acting like sheep - the packing house operation will start up again. The wolves have shown the sheep once more that there is no Robin Hood, and there's no Sherwood Forest where one can run away and hide.

That's the way wolves manage sheep.

Wolves Require Janissary Bonafides

To be truly accepted as a janissary and receive the benefits that accrue to a janissary - a sheep must irretrievably divorce himself from the flock.

That irretrievable step is often a capitol crime. The sheep who attacks his God and curses him can then be trusted by the wolves - but not by the sheep. The bridges are burned and the outlaw-sheep is considered "traitor" by the rest of the flock. He is THEN a fit candidate to become a "janissary."

The change of allegiance may be sealed by the ancient ritual of marriage.<sup>1</sup> Marriage is the ancient ritual that merges kingdoms, economic empires, and can be the blood union of wolf and sheep. It causes the offspring to inherit the characteristics of the wolf while appearing to be a sheep.<sup>2</sup> This preferred offspring is needed to open the door to the sheepfold because the wolf disguised by a sheep-skin is the wolf most difficult to detect. The offspring of a wolf-sheep marriage is one of the most valuable acquisitions of the wolf-pack. Its lifetime job is opening the gates of the sheepfold so that the wolves may enter. The one who makes it possible receives special consideration.

Next to the union of the sheep with the wolf is the bonafide of allowing one's child to be taken and united with a wolf. Sheep- law dealing with this infraction is strict. The father of the wayward sheep wars against his God if he refuses to disown his sacrilegious off-spring.<sup>1</sup> The sheep who refuses to disown his mixed off-spring may now be accepted as bona fide, he has a "wolf-heart." The wolves may now safely pay him the benefits accruing to a loyal janissary.

In South Africa, a janissary named DeKlerkasheep - a sheep with a wolf- heart - has given his blessing to his son's marrying a black she- wolf. To obtain the substantial rewards a janissary receives - bridges to the flock must be burnt.

In Germany, a wolf posing as a sheep was elected to the nation's highest office. He helped bring more than 100,000 sheep to trial for wolf-assault. Janissary judges have filled the prisons with sheep accused of assaulting wolves. In Russia, 35,000,000 sheep and their allies died in the teeth of the wolves. Not a single wolf has been found guilty. It would be against nature if they were. Wolves see nothing wrong with wolves doing what wolves do.

Janissaries Protect Wolves

An injured wolf quickly falls victim to another wolf. "Red Brigade" wolves in Italy shoot victims in the legs so they can't walk. Being a cripple is one of the ultimate injuries inflicted by wolves on wolves. Wolves have this thing about hurting other wolves, breaking fingers, arms, and legs, to make cripples out of them. American red-wolves used to cut the Achilles tendon so the injured one could not dodge the blows of other wolves. Desert- wolves cut off hands or feet, or cut off eyelids to make their selected victims blind and forced to beg. It's what wolves do.

Wolves can fight skillfully and well. But they prefer to use others to fight their battles: they pay them handsomely. Under sheep-rules this appears cowardly, but this is not the case. The wolves use sheep-janissaries to preserve the wolf from being injured and falling prey to other wolves. The highest example of wolf-skill is to fulfill

1 "Therefore let us make a covenant (an agreement) with our God to put away all the wives, and such as are born of them, according to the counsel (advise) of my Lord, and of those that tremble (are deeply impressed) at the commandment of our God; and let it be done according to the law." Ezra 10:3

the wolf motto; "use an enemy to kill an enemy." Wise sheep never talk down wolves. Wolves are often magnificent animals. They are strong and muscular. They are the end product of 1,000 generations of selective breeding - breeding the very best of those animals who survived doing what wolves do.

I had a dog when I was in the Army. A German shepherd. His name was Thor. I used him to hunt people. I know something about dogs. I saw a coyote. A coyote is a wolf, a small wolf. My dog wanted that coyote. I told him to go get him.

Then I began to have second thoughts. Maybe that was not such a good idea. I took a good look at that coyote. That coyote was nothing but a bundle of wire and steel muscles. My dog was good. He weighed 110 pounds. He was tough. But he was a dog and he was chasing a wolf. If my dog caught that wolf, he would probably kill him, but my dog would be hurt before it was over. So, I called my dog off. Fighting wolves is something that should never be undertaken lightly. Once started - it's for keeps. Wolves seldom take prisoners.

There have been sheep-armies which held wolf-armies in contempt, and were exterminated as a consequence. Just because you are at the front and the wolves remain behind working in finance or in quartermaster, it doesn't mean that they are cowards. It means that they don't see the need to fight when they have gotten someone else to fight for them. And most believe they have more to lose by being injured. An injured wolf is sooner or later going to be attacked by another wolf. Among wolves there is no such thing as a "knight in armor" ready to rescue those in distress. Wolves can be family-oriented, musicians, merchants, traders, agitators, Mafia hit-men, or "wolves-on-patrol," but "knights" are butts of their jokes. I have played football against wolves and they weren't afraid to butt heads. I have fought them in the ring and they weren't afraid to get in your face. Wolves are a lot of things - but yellow isn't a trait. Don't get the idea they are yellow. When they back away and feign flight - expect a trap. They go by different rules. A wolf is a wolf. He is what he is. He was made by God to cull the flocks - and he does it very well. He forces the sheep to choose.<sup>1</sup>

1 "I created man from the invisible and visible ... I appointed him ruler ... to have my wisdom ... I called his name Adam and showed him the two ways ... and I told him 'this is good, and that is bad' that I should learn whether he had love toward me, or hatred, that it be clear which in his race love me." Enoch 30:12-14

Janissary Appearance

The janissary in our midst today are "sheep." They look like sheep because they are sheep. But they believe and act like wolves - they have "wolf-hearts." They are highly useful and are paid the slave-wages of someone who is highly useful.

Wherever you have a powerful sheep-ruler - he's probably a janissary. Often he will be married to a wolf - or his children will. Sheep-law forbids the sheep to have a GREAT king. The Shepherd made YOU king and priest instead!<sup>1</sup> A single great king, other than the Shepherd, constitutes a power "monopoly." He is not needed or wanted by sheep. Power monopolies are forbidden just like any other monopoly.

In past days the sheep didn't have a "standing army." Standing armies are created by wolves or their janissaries to police the sheep. Sheep armies were volunteer militia. There were few who had the chain of a master's "salary-check" placed about their necks. Sheep, owning their own land, used to be suspicious of any man who received a salary-check, especially if he were in the army and therefore heavily armed and potentially dangerous.

The War Between the States was fought by the South with volunteers in militia regiments. Citizens living in counties, cities, and towns organized their own militia groups and elected their leaders. The City of Lynchburg fielded the 2nd Virginia Cavalry and Latham's Battery. Campbell County sent out a regiment. Amherst County sent out a regiment. All were volunteers. The volunteers furnished their own weapons, ammunition, and uniforms. They did it all themselves. That's according to the Shepherd's orders. It's what sheep do.

The union army had volunteers at first, but few volunteered later for what was seen as being an unjust war. Most of the later recruits were janissaries. Some were hired as far away as Germany to form a national army. Volunteers fight for their "cause." Salaried soldiers fight for their paymaster and what they can make on the side. Wherever you see a king who has a powerful standing army on his payroll, it is an army loyal to its paymaster rather than to its own people. The officers of that army are also - excepting those few who have an independent source of income as did the maverick pistol-packing General George Sheep of WWII fame. If the king himself was on another's payroll before becoming king - one can safely assume that he too - that all of them - the army, its officers, and the illustrious king - they are all janissaries of the wolf. When the wolf manages the sheepfold, things seldom are as they first appear.<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> "Jesus Christ ... hath made us kings and priests unto God and his Father." Rev 1:5,6

Janissaries As Managers

Most wolves look like wolves. They've got long ears and sharp teeth. They seldom stand in front of the TV and talk to the sheep and expect the sheep to believe them. Most sheep instinctively distrust wolves. Wolves get their janissaries to speak for them.

In top business, salaried-managers are selected because of their wolf-loyalty rather than expertise. There are two whole generations in America composed of ordinarily worthless glad-hand types who have received paychecks large enough to allow them to have large families. They have nothing else to recommend them other than descent from those exhibiting wolf-loyalty. This class appears genetically incapable of being able to manage a farm or plantation of the kind that was standard for everyone in the time of our grandfathers. This is the upper-middle-income class that has been created by wolf- selection of the sheep. It is where immorality, abortion, venereal disease, and heresy run rampant.<sup>2</sup>

Today's military janissaries have been carefully selected since at least the 1950s. Those with any possible anti-wolf tendencies have been carefully weeded out. The idea of a sheep revolt starting with the armed forces is remote. Those reaching command levels are steeped in wolf-lore and are dependable. Most look with dog-like devotion at the hand that gives them their salary check, and would not hesitate one second to shoot their mothers if ordered to do so, and see nothing wrong in doing so. If they protest over "the rightness" of what they are told to do - they are disposed of. Retired.

I know one of these "carefully selected" janissaries who is now retired. His forebears quit Scotland because they refused to say "God Save The King" when they recognized only one king - Jesus Christ. He has forgotten who he is and now considers it a mark honor to confront anyone who would dare criticize the establishment that gives him his monthly retirement check. To him, there is absolutely nothing the wolf- establishment does that is wrong. Ill advised, perhaps, but not wrong. That's the mind-set of a janissary. They believe what they believe as much as you believe what you believe.

1 "Ye shall know them by their fruits." Matt 7:16

2 "Thine own wickedness shall correct thee ... thou hast forsaken the Lord." Jer 2:19

But, that too, is part of the game. Wolves only pay dependable sheep - and those they wish to control. The only surprise is that there are still those who do not know this simple fact.

Wolves "Rule Over Thee"

The Shepherd specifically instructed the sheep that wolves are not to rule over them.<sup>1</sup> Neither may they have wolves for judges and kings. Sheep must be judged by their peers, because sheep have the Law in their hearts; "Jesus Christ ... hath made us kings and priests unto God ('the Word')." Rev 1:5,6, "I will put my law ... in their hearts." Deut 31:31<sup>2</sup>

Wolves enter sheepfolds to eat sheep. They bribe the king to obtain entry. Once inside the wolves busy themselves doing what they came to do. Their janissary king is told to appoint janissary judges. Janissary judges pronounce that sheep-law is "unconstitutional." The "unconstitutional" sheep-law is then replaced by "wolf-policy" - whatever it is. Separation of church and state is decreed to separate the sheep from their shepherd. In confusion, sheep turn to their churchmen. Wolves had foreseen this and prepared for it. They pay sheep churchmen by exempting them from paying taxes. Earning this exemption the churchmen tell the sheep to obey the wolves; "Obey in all things your masters (meaning the wolves) ... And whatsoever ye do, do it heartily as to the Lord." Col 3:22,23, "Be subject to principalities and powers, (again meaning the wolves) to obey magistrates (meaning wolves)." Tit 3:1. They side-step telling the sheep; "We must obey God ('the Word') rather than men." Acts 5:29 and "If ye love me obey my commandments ('the Word')." John 14:15.

1 "Thou mayest not set a stranger (Heb: zûwr - racial alien) over thee, which is not thy brother." Deu 17:15.

2 Because of these sheep-laws wolves were formerly not permitted in the armed services, police, to teach, businesses, on sports teams, or anyplace where they may rule over sheep.

These two diametrically opposite points of view put the sheep on the horns of a dilemma. If they obey the wolves - their Shepherd will kill them.<sup>1</sup> If they obey their Shepherd - the wolves will kill them. Churchmen write pamphlets "Are There Vigilantes In Heaven?" They answer their own question with a resounding "No!" The wolves belch their approval and continue feeding.

Janissary judges have decreed that henceforth wolves are legally "sheep." The churchmen agree that this is as it should be. Wolves may henceforth vote in sheep-elections and take their place on juries to rule over sheep. The decision of eleven sheep sitting in judgment may be nullified by a single wolf who votes the policy of his alpha-wolf. Sheep justice becomes a thing of the past.

The new wolf policy finds sheep who stand in their way are evil and must be made to pay. Punishments, fines, and awards are handed down. Prisons bulge. Sheep that protest bad treatment are singled out for special attention. Tribute, taxes, grants, poverty payouts, subsidized housing, ballooning public debt, handouts - all mushroom as the wolves set their teeth and begin to feed. The gleanings of pastures carefully tended for generations disappear overnight.

Wolves as Managers

Wolves are wolves. They are what they are because a thousand generations of selective breeding has made them what they are. They are killers, and hunters - descended from 1,000 generations of killers and hunters. They capture prey - they take. They are masters at what they do.

Sheep produce. They make, they fix, they repair, they are peaceful. These are traits of a good governor.

A wolf is not adapted by nature to be a good governor. They leave devastation wherever they go - whenever they try to rule. It is very bad when wolves break through in a great army and capture sheep.

The "dingo" lives in Australia. It's the closest thing to a wolf they've got over there, and it eats sheep. That's what it does - they've got lots of sheep in Australia.

A dingo will pull down a sheep. But a pack of dingoes will pull down a second and a third sheep, and they'll end up pulling down

1 Deut 58:66, Lev 14:35

500 or 1,000 sheep at a time. When packs of Dingoes get into a flock of sheep the blood lust comes out and they may kill the whole flock.

In 1917 there was a great revolution in Russia. The Russian trade-wolves united with the larger pack of Russian white-wolves and fell on the sheep that had ruled for over 1,000 years from their settlements up and down the Russian rivers. These people were called Goths, then Varangians, and then Russ. Except for a handful, they were exterminated. The wolves went into a killing frenzy. They killed 35,000,000. This figure includes the wolves who fought with the sheep.

When wolves storm into areas like Poland or Germany, they do the same. After they leave, burial pits containing 50,000 or 75,000 bodies at a time are discovered - discovered all over Central Germany. The wolf-howl doesn't mention such things. But talk to Germans, or read their newspapers, or catch an occasional squib in a local paper that by accident gets through the paper-curtain. Death pits are the evidence they leave of their killing frenzy when they first storm in. Wolves kill - that's what wolves do.

When they come in quietly, and stealthily take over, they eliminate one bothersome sheep at a time. That's where you get your Kirk's, your Kahls, and your Weavers on mountain tops - one at a time. Isolating and killing sheep one at a time - that too is what wolves do.

Sheep Punishments

Sheep-law says not to tax. The wolf-tax is proof of wolf rule. The Shepherd says not to make a sheep a slave. That's what the law says. Every day the janissaries bring sheep before them on all sorts of charges, and they raise and lower the hammer and take the sheep and enslave them and the slave camps grow. There's a penalty for making a slave out of a sheep. There is a penalty for kidnaping a sheep and taking him away from his flock.<sup>1</sup>

There are two sheep-penalties for law violators. The first is restitution. If you steal a car - and they catch you with it - you pay back two cars. If you wrap the car around a telephone pole - 4 cars. If it is a Rolls Royce - you pay back 5 cars. If you can't pay - you work it off. If you run, you die. It's that simple.<sup>1</sup> Second. For some crimes there can be no restitution. If someone is murdered - premeditated murder - or kidnaped, or raped, crimes in which there is no way to make restitution, the penalty is death.<sup>2</sup>

<sup>1</sup> "He that stealeth a man, and selleth him, or if he be found in his hand, he shall surely be put to death." Ex 21:16

The punishment prescribed by the Shepherd is not the penalty administered today. The sentence handed down is NOT "restitution or death." It is "slavery." This it is wolf-"policy," not law of the Shepherd. The sheep need to know what is being done - with proof from chapter and verse. Gordon Kahl, was killed for objecting to taxes. Kirk was killed for objecting to giving up property that is never ever to be sold. Weaver's wife and child were killed because no-one refuses to obey the rule of the wolf.

It is important for sheep to know that the wolves are in the sheepfold killing sheep.

Wolves Protected By Sheep-Law

Once a wolf is certified by judge and churchman as being a "sheep," he is permitted the run of the sheepfold. The skillful ones have learned to raid the sheep while being protected by sheep-law, since the sheep-law considers them sheep. With sheep-law protection they can do to sheep and other wolves living within the sheepfold what they would be killed for doing in a wolf-pack living outside the sheepfold. Sheep have been trained to protect any depredation as long as it has been declared "legal." Usury, pornography, kidnapping, abortion, and adultery have been declared "legal," and are therefore OK. A popular TV show constantly advises viewers not to "take the law into your own hands, take it to court," meaning a "janissary- court." Sheep pride themselves on being "legal" even when being legal is unlawful. "Legal" is the name of the game for wolves who are hunting inside the sheepfold.

Janissary-judges are paid by wolves to hand down decisions that twist sheep-law without abolishing it. The basic sheep-law protects both sheep and wolf, but all these new decisions create a confusion of exceptions. These exceptions are bound in scores of thick books jokingly referred to as "law-books."

1 Prov 6:30, Ex 22:2

2 Gen 9:6

These exceptions to the law do two things; 1) They make it legal to violate the Law. 2) They make illegal the things formerly considered lawful.

The result is that every sheep is at all times in violation of 50 major and literally thousands of minor statutes that most sheep never heard of. Thousands of additional judicial and legislative acts and decisions go on the books every year, creating millions of new lawbreakers. If an alpha-wolf orders his janissary law enforcer to move a swat-team against a sheep, all that is needed is to accuse the selected prey of having violated one of these statues or decisions and persecute him for doing it. If he has violated none of them - the catch-all RICO law can be used to convict the sheep for conspiracy, or "thinking" about doing something illegal. Wolves eat sheep, that's what they do, and they carefully protect themselves by being ultra-legal. The wolves have used this same hunting technique in many, many, other sheepfolds that now stand empty of sheep. It works - for wolves.

Accused individual sheep appearing before a janissary-judge is lost. He doesn't know where to start. The Shepherd's law is banned from the courtroom and banned from discussion by the latest wolf-policy, called "separation of Shepherd and sheep." "Constitutional Law" based on the Shepherd's law is ruled "not applicable." Only an expert "officer of the court," a lawyer, can hope to find his way through the mass of exceptions contained in this morass of legaleze. Then, in horror, the sheep discovers that he is at the mercy of the court because there are as many statutes going one way as the other way. The law no longer decides - wolf policy decides between conflicting statutes.

Trapped, the accused sheep may then be allowed to take his case before a jury. Most juries contain wolves for "balance." Janissary-judges have ruled that juries containing wolves are legal since wolves are "peers" of sheep and cannot be excluded. If this choice is unsatisfactory, the sheep may throw himself at the mercy of a janissary-judge, or, increasingly, a wolf who has been appointed judge.

Two kinds of legal help are available. The "expert-wolf" and the "expert-sheep." The expert-sheep tries to find ways to "obey" the law. The expert-wolf tries to find a "loop-hole" to evade the law. These are entirely different approaches. Sheep tend to advise sheep to obey - it's what they do. Wolves tend to want to evade the law, so they find the loop-hole provided for them by their janissary-judges. It's what they do. Wolves use the legal wolf- howl to advise each other of existing loop-holes, and the most recent placement of the legal boundaries. A wolf knows where the very edge of the law is. He is then able to go to the very edge to take home the prey. He is a predator. This is what he does. The sheep's legal system has been transformed into a wolf- system presided over by janissaries. The wolf knows how to operate in his own system. He will spring from his legal loophole to ambush, seize, and devour. Its all legal.

There are many black, red, and yellow wolves in prison. There are many sheep in prison. But one seldom finds a trade-wolf in prison. Occasionally one is caught with his hands in the cookie jar. It is seldom an accident. It was all fixed so that he would spend few months in prison and receive light fines to obtain multi-millions in exchange. It's all the statutes allow. He knew that. His janissary-judge or legislator made the loop-hole through which he had dashed to seize his prey. The penalty was light. The wolf knows the difference between "law" and "legal." The result is plenty of prey to divide with the pack, and it is what makes the trade-wolf the most successful hunter of them all.

Sheepfolds Destroyed

In history there are many examples of wolves forcing their way into sheepfolds. It has happened many times in the past, and it is happening all over the world today. The Shepherd ordered the wolves to do it.<sup>1</sup> As a result the Sumarian sheepfold stands empty. The Persian sheepfold stands empty. The wolves ate the sheep and they stand alone in the sheepfold. India, too, stands empty. Formerly a sheep stronghold, it now swarms with wolves who devour each other. The Egyptian sheepfold stands empty as do the Turkish and Greek sheepfolds. The Sicilian and south Italian sheepfolds stand empty. The Rumanian, Russian, Polish, Hungarian, Yugoslav, and Czechoslovakian sheepfolds stand empty. The sheepfold of San

1 "Come, wild animals of the field; come, tear apart the sheep; come, wild animals of the forest, devour my people. For the leaders of my people - the Lord's watchmen, his shepherds - are all blind to every danger. They are featherbrained and give no warning when danger comes. They love to lie there, love to sleep, to dream. And they are as greedy as dogs, never satisfied; they are stupid shepherds who only look after their own interest, each trying to get as much as he can for himself from every possible source." Isaiah 56:9- 11

Domingo, now called Haiti, stands empty, as does the Mexican and South American sheepfolds. The sheep are dead. They have been eaten.

Wolves eat sheep. That's what they do. To eat sheep they must first enter the sheepfold. Once in the sheepfold they eat the sheep one at a time until they go into a killing frenzy, and at the last only the wolves remain. Even the janissary-sheep and the sheep with wolf-hearts are eaten. Then, the famished wolves eat each other. In time the sheepfold becomes as Captain John Smith found Virginia - a wilderness inhabited by a handful of red- wolves preying on each other. The Word said this would happen in the last days.

The Shepherd has stopped the flight of his sheep. No longer can the sheep abandon their responsibilities and flee to another safe sheepfold elsewhere. There is no safe sheepfold left. All sheepfolds are under attack at the same time. Wolves roam freely and empty sheepfolds stand as mute testimony to the acts of traitorous sheep who opened the gates to let the wolf-packs enter. America is under attack. So is Scandinavia, Britain, Western Europe, South Africa, Australia and New Zealand. All sheepfolds are under attack. There is no safety anywhere. There is only one we can turn to with our desperate plea; "Save us, O God ... gather us together, and deliver us from the heathen." 1Chron16:35.

Little Red Riding Hood

I want to tell you the story of Little Red Riding Hood. Once upon a time in a big deep forest, there lived a grandmother. She had a real nice cottage.

Little Red Riding Hood wanted to see her grandma. She packed a basket full of goodies and set out. On the way she met a wolf. The wolf said, "Good morning, Little Red Riding Hood. Where are you going?"

Little Red Riding Hood answered; "To see my grandma who lives in the deep forest." That's how the wolf found out where Little Red Riding Hood's grandma lived. They chatted for a bit and then the big, bad wolf told her "good- bye" and Little Red Riding Hood passed by on her way.

Then, the wicked wolf took a short cut and got to Grandma's cottage first.

The wolf knocked on the door and said "I'm little Red Riding Hood." Big bad wolves always say that. When grandma opened the door the wolf gobbled up Little Red Riding Hood's grandma. Then, the wolf put on Grandma's night cap and got in her bed.

When Little Red Riding Hood got there she went in to see Grandma. She looked at her Grandma and said, "Oh Grandma, what a big nose you have." She said, "Grandma, what long teeth you have."

About that time the woodcutter discovered that Little Red Riding Hood was in the cottage with the big bad wolf, and he freaked. He picked up his ax and ran into the cottage and chopped the wolf open, and Grandma sprang out.

Now isn't that a nice story?

It's a wonderful bedtime story for sheep. It is a recurring nightmare for wolves.

Wolves eat sheep. That's what they do. In order to eat sheep wolves must gain entry into the sheepfold.

If you run all of the wolves out of the sheepfold, they will immediately try to get back in. Because if they cannot get into the sheepfold, they cannot eat sheep. And that's what wolves do - wolves eat sheep.

Sheep try to keep from being eaten by wolves.

To put it another way: sheep don't hate wolves. There is almost no anti-wolfism in the land today. Sheep just have an unreasoning fear of being eaten.
